HARVARD GETS AN EARLY MARGIN IN CLASH WITH YALE

Ralph Horween, After One Failure, Gives His Team 3-Point Margin With Drop Kick From 30-Yard Line.

CRIMSON FAVORED TO WIN OVER BULLDOGS

Followers of Cambridge Team Give Odds of 10 to 8 on Eleven—Field Is Bit Soggy Because of Recent Rains.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 22.—A cloudy sky, from which the sun shone dimly and a warm south wind greeted the spectators, who viewed the annual football contest between the eevens of Harvard University and Yale University here this afternoon. It was estimated that at least 50,000 persons would witness the game, the final between the Big Three teams this season.

Today's battle was the first between the aggregations of the two institutions since 1916.

When the teams took the field, Harvard was the favorite at 10 to 8. Although the field had been covered with straw since last Wednesday, the footing for the players was none too perfect.

The Yale contingent had the east side of the stand and whiled away the time with Eli songs and cheers. Across the field Harvard sent back song for song and yell for yell.

The line-up:

HARVARD.	Positions.	YALE.
Desmond	L. End—R.	Allen
Sedgwick	L. Tackle—R.	Walker
Wood	L. Guard—R.	Galt
Havemeyer	Center	Callahan
Carl	R. Guard—L.	Acosta
Kane	R. Tackle—L.	Dickens
Rosie	R. End—L.	Reinhardt
Murray	Quarterback	Kempton
Humphrey	L. Halfback—R.	Lay
Casey	R. Halfback—L.	Neville
A. Horween	Fullback	Braden

Officials—Referee, W. S. Langford, Trinity; umpire, David L. Fultz, Brown; field judge, Fred W. Murphy, Brown; linesman, Mike Thompson, Georgetown.

FIRST QUARTER.

Desmond appeared at Harvard's left end instead of Phinney.

Harvard kicked off and Melville fumbled on the 150-yard line, but Kempton recovered. Both teams punted on the second down and when Braden fumbled Harvard recovered on the Yale 22-yard line. The Crimson could not gain and Ralph Horween was sent to full back and tried a drop-kick. The wind blew the attempt wide of the posts.

Yale punted from the 20-yard mark and the Crimson backs carried the ball by short dashes to Yale's 39-yard line, whence Horween dropkicked successfully. Score, Harvard 3, Yale 0.

Kempton ran back the kick-off to Yale's 30-yard mark, but another Yale fumble, this time by Webb, gave the Crimson the ball on the Blue 35-yard line. Yale immediately held for downs and then Neville punted to Harvard's 34-yard line. An exchange of punts closed the period with Harvard holding the ball on her own 25-yard mark. Score, Harvard 3, Yale 0.

ST. LOUIS TO OFFER $40,000 TO LAND G. O. P. CONVENTION

Size of Guarantee Increased $15,000 by Committee—Fifty Delegates to Go to Washington.

The size of the fund to be raised as a guarantee for the expenses of the 1920 Republican national convention, if it is held in St. Louis, was increased from $25,000 to $40,000 at a meeting yesterday of the Committee on Convention appointed by Mayor Kiel.

A decision also was reached by the committee to send a delegation of 50 persons to Washington to present the St. Louis proposition for the convention to the Republican National Committee Dec. 10.

A. L. Shapleigh was chosen chairman of the Finance Committee which will have charge of the raising of the $40,000 fund. It is proposed to have the fund subscribed and paid in before the delegation goes to Washington, and to have in the hands of the delegation a certified check for the $40,000, which it can lay before the National Committee for its acceptance.

The purpose of the fund is to pay rental on the Coliseum for the convention and such expenses as printing and badges.

W. Frank Carter, president of the Chamber of Commerce, announced that the chamber would aid in obtaining the fund and in the campaign to bring the convention to St. Louis. He expressed the opinion that the advertising the city would receive from the convention would far more than repay the expense.

U. R. DEFICIT $81,203.31 IN FIRST MONTH OF 8-CENT FARE

General Manager Perkins Files Report on Operation Under Increased Rates.

The first full month's receipts of the United Railways under the 8-cent cash fare, for the month of October, leaves the company a deficit of $81,203.31, according to a statement today by Manager Perkins.

The new fare produced a gross operating revenue of $1,617,799.24. The operating expenses were $1,414,697.34; taxes, $74,094.34; interest, $219,448.65, and nonoperating income, $9237.78.

Perkins said the cash 8-cent fare deposits had decreased to 5.13 per cent of the total receipts, this level being reached Nov. 19.

U. S. TAKES CHARGE OF 288,400 POUNDS OF SUGAR HERE

Libel Issued Against Staple Said to Be Held in Storage for Soft Drink and Preserve Factory.

MAY BE PUT ON SALE TO PUBLIC

Action to Be Taken by Government Officials Depends on Whether Evidence Substantiates Hoarding Charge.

The United States Marshal today took charge of 2884 sacks of sugar, each containing 100 pounds that were discovered at the Booth Cold Storage Co., First and Ashley streets, where they were being held for the Hipolite Manufacturing Co., 406 Market street, which makes soft drinks, syrups, fruit preserves and bakers' supplies.

In issuing a libel against the sugar, Assisttant District Attorney Wheeler, oin charge of prosecutions for profiteering and hoarding, charged that the 228,400 pounds of sugar was more than could legitimately be kept on hand for manufacturing purposes, and charged that it was being held for an increase in the market price. Walter H. Hipolite, president of the company, lives at 3945 Magnolia avenue.

May Be Sold to Public.

The owners of the sugar will be called into court to prove that they were not hoarding the sugar. If they fail to do so, the sugar will be sold at a public sale by the Government, and the proceeds, less the cost of the sale, turned over to the owners. The question of prosecution would then be decided by the District Attorney. If the owners absolve themselves of the hoarding charge, the sugar will be released.

Meantime a United States Deputy Marshall will maintain a watch on it at the cold storage house.

This was the fourth libel proceeding here under the hoarding clause of the food control bill. One of the others was against food held at the same storage plant. The others were against stores of eggs and coffee. All three subsequently were dropped by the Government when the owners presented evidence that the commodities were not being hoarded.

While grocers are vainly begging for an opportunity to buy sugar with which to supply their customers, manufacturers of candy and soft drinks are either buying it in carload lots, or are using up their reserve stocks, inquiry by a Post-Dispatch reporter disclosed today.

Following the action yesterday of President Wilson, in reviving the wartime Government supervision of sugar, it was said that one of the first acts would be to curtail sharply the use of sugar in making soft drinks and candy, consumption of which has increased in the wake of prohibition.

Many retail grocers are unable to buy any sugar at all. Those who have it are rationing it out to their customers a pound or two at a time.

Gets a Carload.

The National Candy Co., which has three factories here, and is one of the largest consumers of sugar, received a carload Thursday and is expecting more. F. D. Seward, the buyer, said they managed to have enough on hand to keep running. He declined to say how much that was. There are 150 to 250 barrels in a car, and 325 pounds to a barrel.

Blanke-Wenneker Candy Co. doesn't need any sugar at this time, because it has between 300 and 400 barrels on hand, having received a carload last week. This will be enough to last until Dec. 10, when production is discontinued until the first of the year, officials said. The company uses 125 to 175 barrels a week.

The Orange Whistle Co., which uses 10 barrels or 3250 pounds of sugar a day, has a five-days' supply on hand, the manager said, and expects more when that is gone. The company received a carload Monday.

Could Get Only Five Sacks

Some difficulty in getting the normal amount has been experienced by the Tip Top Bottling Co., which was able to get only five sacks yesterday, the buyer said. Usually two barrels a day is used there.

The Busy Bee Candy Co. has been able to "borrow" enough to keep going, officials said. They expect to receive another carload next week. The company uses a large amount of sugar in the manufacture of candy and confections.

When the reporter expressed curiosity regarding the ability of candy and soft-drink makers to get sugar when grocers cannot, one of them remarked:

"We get it because we are willing to pay the price. The next carload will cost us over 20 cents a pound. We don't care what it costs if we can get it."

PARTIAL ECLIPSE OF SUN VISIBLE HERE AT 6:50 A. M.

Moon's Shadow Reached Greatest Area at 7:50 and by 9:02 Had Disappeared.

Star-gazers who scan our solar system for astronomical phenomena were gratified at 6:50 a. m. today to observe that their predictions of a partial eclipse of the sun at that hour were confirmed, for when old Sol peeped over the horizon to herald a new day, the upper right-hand portion of his face was obscured by a shadow.

To observers with smoked glasses the eclipse, which was the shadow of the moon intruding between the earth and its great light, appeared as a dark spot obscuring the sun's surface, but through the telescope of the Rev. Father Martin S. Brennan of 6304 Minnesota avenue, astronomer priest, only "something cutting a notch into the sun's edge" was observed. Nothing could be seen, Father Brennan said, except that the notch grew larger and larger until 7:50, when the shadow began to pass away and the sun to regain its normal appearance.

At 9:02 the eclipse ended, and science was benefited in that it had almost ideal conditions for observation in this region. In Texas and the West Indies it was annular, or ring-shaped, in which the moon appears in the center of the sun's disk, with a ring of light around it. That phase was predicted to last from three to six minutes.

Father Brennan said he was waiting with his telescope before sunrise, and was apprehensive for a time, as there were cloud flurries on the Eastern horizon. With the first rays of light, however, these clouds were dissipated, and when the sun rose the eclipse was visible. Three minutes later a full, clear view of the situation was possible and he studied it carefully for two hours, with no other result than that the notch had come and gone.

NO COMMENT IN GERMANY OVER SENATE'S TREATY ACTION

Officials Are Silent and Absence of Authentic News Restrains Editors.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Friday, Nov. 21.—Official circles refrain from commenting on the action of the United States Senate in adjourning without taking definite action on the treaty of peace. Absence of authentic news is also restraining editorial writers.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—All the weeklies discuss the Senate's decision in a friendly way. "We understand perfectly America's difficulties and the spirit in which the Senate has been in action and how public opinion has been working," The Spectator says. The newspaper adds that the reservation to Article X does not kill the league of nations.

"The real trouble," it asserts, "is that America will not agree to a limitation of armaments. It is to be feared that many small states will follow her example. We can hardly survive unless we beat our swords into plow shares."

The Weekly Nation says: "Superficially Europe's loss is irremediable. Her idealists lost the participation of the greatest of the world states in the greatest of world ideas. Her liberals will miss the hoped-for American mandate for Armenia and Constantinople; her philanthropists may have to lament her formal withdrawal from economic relief of millions of starving and unemployed workers."

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 21—There is a regretful tone in the newspaper comment over the failure of the United States Senate to ratify the peace treaty.

PRESIDENT IS SATISFIED WITH HITCHCOCK'S FIGHT FOR TREATY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Secretary Tumulty issued a statement today emphasizing the fact that no breach had occurred between President Wilson and Senator Hitchcock. He characterized the latter's leadership in the treaty fight as "masterly," and "satisfactory to all friends of the administration."

The Secretary also denied that the President was taking sides in any contest over the minority leadership in the Senate.

The Tumulty statement said: "The statement carried in certain newspapers that there has been a breach between the President and Senator Hitchcock is not true. Senator Hitchcock's management of the recent contest over the ratification of the treaty of peace was masterly and was satisfactory to all the friends of the administration. No one is more appreciative of Senator Hitchcock's efforts than the President himself.

"The statement that the President is taking sides in any contest over the leadership of the minority of the Senate is wholly without foundation. The object of such a statement can only be to create discord among the friends of the treaty."

ORDER PERMITTING SALE OF 2.75 BEER SIGNED BY JUDGE

Pollock Telephones to Revenue Collector Authorizing Issuance of Stamps for Beverage.

GOVERNMENT WILL TAKE AN APPEAL

Federal Attorneys Propose to Ask for Writ of Supersedeas, Prohibiting Traffic Until Case Is Decided.

Judge John C. Pollock, at Kansas City, Kan., today signed the decree making effective the temporary injunction granted by him yesterday to restrain the enforcement of the Volstead act in St. Louis insofar as the act affects the manufacture and sale of 2.75 per cent beer here.

Internal Revenue Collector Moore at 12:40 today received this telegram from Judge Pollock:

"Have this morning signed order in consolidated beer cases No. 5207, Equity, and the same is now effective."

Moore this afternoon began selling revenue stamps authorizing the manufacture and sale of 2.75 beer. Several brewery agents had been waiting at the Federal Building to obtain stamps.

The injunction, as asked for by two brewing associations and five independent breweries in St. Louis, would prevent the United States District Attorney from basing or continuing any prosecutions for the manufacture or sale of the beverage and would restrain the United States Internal Revenue Collector from refusing to issue revenue stamps for the sale of any beverage containing one-half of one per cent or more of alcohol, which was the limit fixed by the Volstead act.

Effective On Signing.

Judge Pollock said the injunction was effective upon his signing of the order.

In his decision handed down yesterday the Judge said the injunction was granted "on such terms as to bonds and form of orders as may be agreed upon by the parties, or hereinafter decreed by the Court."

Government officers today made it clear that the form of decree to be submitted to Judge Pollock was not drawn up through any agreement between Government and brewery attorneys.

Assistant United State's Attorney White, who made the argument for the Government in its motion to dismiss the suit of the brewers, said an appeal from the ruling of Judge Pollock would be taken after a final hearing has been had and a permanent injunction granted by the Court, so that the matter might be taken directly to the United States Supreme Court.

Will Try to Prevent Sales

With the appeal of the case to a higher court, he said, a writ of supersedeas would be asked, to prevent the manufacture and sale of 2.75 per cent beer by the brewers until the final determination of the pending litigation. The writ will first be sought in the District Court, he said, and if denied there similar application will be made in the court to which the case is appealed.

White declared that neither he nor District Attorney Hensley had come to any agreement with the counsel for the brewers as to the form of the decree to be entered by Judge Pollock. He said he has wired Judge Pollock requesting him to set as early a date as possible for the final hearing on the injunction.

Preparations to resume the manufacture of 2.75 beer were made by several St. Louis breweries yesterday, and to put it on the market when the official order was handed down.

WHISKY DEALERS HERE SUE FOR RIGHT TO SELL

Ask for Injunction Against Enforcement of Wartime Prohibition Act.

Four St. Louis whisky dealers today filed suit in the United States District Court to enjoin the District Attorney and the Internal Revenue Collector from enforcing the wartime prohibition enforcement act and the act of Nov. 21, 1918, which forbade the manufacture of whisky.

The plaintiffs in the injunction suit are J. Simons & Sons, Lee Levy & Co., the Edwin Schiele Distilling Co. and the G. Riesmeyer Distilling Co. They allege that they have in St. Louis liquors to the total value of $493,479, including $25,127 worth of wine owned by J. Simon & Sons, and that the laws of which they complain will, if enforced, deprive them of their property without due process of law and without compensation.

NC-4 Starts for Hannibal; To Pass City on Return

Commander Read Expected to Cover 125 Miles in 80 Minutes—May Be Back About 2 P. M.

The transatlantic flying boat, NC-4, which had been anchored in the Mississippi River at the foot of Market street since Wednesday, took to the air today at 9:55 a. m. in a fashion that thrilled several hundred persons gathered on the levee, turned her nose north and made for Hannibal, 125 miles distant, at a speed which Commander Albert Cushing Read estimated would take him there in about 80 minutes.

A wireless message sent from the ship was picked up in St. Louis. It said that Hannibal was sighted at 11:20. This was 80 minutes from the hour at which the ship passed the foot of Market street under full way.

James C. Crowdus, formerly a hydrophone operator in the navy, was in constant communication with the NC-4 on her flight to Hannibal, using a wireless plant with a 1000-mile radius, which he has at his home at 5047 Washington boulevard.

Commander Read said before his departure that he would make his stay in Hannibal as sghorot as possible, then would head south again on a 318-mile flight to Cairo, Ill., on a course which will take him over St. Louis, and, in all probability, the downtown section.

Commander Read was not certain of the hour at which he would reappear to view here, because he did not know how short it would be possible to cut the visit to Hannibal. He thought, he said, that he might make it back by 2 o'clock.

Start Delayed by Trouble.

The start was two hours and 55 minutes later than the hour announced—7 o'clock. When an effort was made to start the four engines they balked. This caused Pilot Walter Hinton to remark: "St. Louis gasoline is all right, but it won't burn." Ether was sought and it set the engines roaring. Then Hinton discovered that he had worn out his batteries in trying to make the gasoline burn.

At 9:30 the big ship taxied from shore to midstream and proceeded south to a point below the free bridge. A brisk wind was blowing as an aid to a takeoff to the north, but the current was a deterrent in that direction. Commander Read apparently decided to experiment to determine which was the lesser of the evils, for he spent 25 minutes in taxi spurts, first north and then south.

The Takeoff.

He decided to brace the wind and from a point directly in front of the crowd rushed south toward a takeoff. The boat ripped the river into flying spray that washed her hull and flew in clouds into the superstructure. The speed was great. Directly upon passing under the free bridge the plane left the water and climbed rapidly into a smoke cloud that hid her when she turned north. In 10 minutes she reappeared, flying north at about 1000 feet, once more the tremendous size of the craft being apparent to eyes capable of some judgment in that respect from memory of land planes from Scott Field that once were frequent sights.

The plane carried 14 persons as it did on its flight from Paducah, Ky., to St. Louis. During her stay here thousands of persons went to the levee to see her and hundreds of others heard Commander Reed tell in three addresses how he made the first air crossing of the Atlantic Ocean last May.

The present tour so far has included 23 ports and there are 11 yet on the schedule. The tour will end on Dec. 22 at Pensacola, Fla.

GUILTY PLEA EXPECTED FROM BANK EMPLOYES

Prosecutor Says "Best Dressed Man" in Springfield, Ill., Will Admit Embezzlement.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 22.—Ralph Deicken, society man and the "best dressed man in Springfield," and Miss Jessie Conner will plead guilty to charges of embezzlement of funds of two banks, United States District Attorney Knotts said today. Deicken was paying teller and Miss Conner an accountant of the Old Ridgely Bank and the New Ridgely Farmers' Bank, and they are alleged to have juggled accounts to the extent of $27,000.

It also is asserted that Deicken intimates he will name other persons as responsible for shortages.

Miss Conner arose from a sick bed to appear in Federal Court for examination. She has been in a highly nervous condition since the alleged shortages were discovered about three weeks ago.

Wants to Go to Prison.

"I'm guilty and I want to go to the penitentiary," Miss Conner is quoted as saying today. "I want to go worse than you officials want me to. Arrest is a relief to the nerve-racking agony I have suffered for ten years seeking to cover up these shortages.

"Why did I do it? I wonder myself. I was a fool, but I'm ready to pay the penalty."

At her hearing she refused to accept bail and was taken to jail. Later Deicken, given his liberty on $20,000 bond, appeared at the jail with bondsmen, and Miss Conner consented to her own release.

Accused of Juggling Books.

According to the opinion of Federal officials, Miss Conner got little of the money that is said to be missing. She is accused of juggling the books to cover up shortages in accounts with which Deicken as teller is charged with tampering. Miss Conner is about 30 years old and came here from Taylorville. She is a sister of the young woman who sued Circuit Judge W. E. Hadley of Edwarsville for breach of promise several years ago.

Deicken was widely known in Springfield and had friends in the best homes of the city. His sartorial equipment caused frequent comment, for he often appears during the course of a day in five or six different suits of clothes.

He has been known for ten years as a "liberal spender."

BODY OF MISSING BABY IN NEW JERSEY SWAMP

"Billy" Dansey, Who Disappeared Oct. 8, Found Three Miles From His Home.

HAMMONTON, N. J., Nov. 22.—The nation-wide search for little Billy Dansey, the 3-year-old child who disappeared from his home here six weeks ago, came to a tragic conclusion yesterday when his uncloth-ed skeleton was found in the woods three miles from his home. It appears that the child not only was kidnaped, but also was murdered by a degenerate. It was said an arrest may be made shortly.

The boy's clothing was found within a radius of 50 feet of the skeleton. About six feet away were the blue rompers he had worn when last seen at home. Further on was his familiar little gray-striped baseball cap with a peak. Near that was his small brown sweater. The rest of his clothing was near by. It may never be determined in exactly what manner the child met his death because the condition of the body makes it impossible to find marks of violence.

There is no question that the boy met his death in his own vicinity within a comparatively short time after he disappeared. This is more striking because of the stir created by his case throughout the country. False trails have led to many cities and the authorities recently have been convinced that the child was kidnaped in mistake for a rich man's son and had been taken West.

The discovery of the skeleton was made by a hunter. The clothing was identified by Charles White, a neighbor, and then by Billy's father, Hercules V. Dansey. White is the father of Charlie, the boy, about the same age and appearance as Billy, who, it once was believed, was to have been kidnaped for a ransom had not the kidnapers taken Billy by a mistake. This theory is dissipated by today's discovery.

The boy disappeared Oct. 8. When last seen he was playing in a peach orchard on the property of White, near the Dansey home. A few minutes later his mother came out looking for him, went to the White's house and found Billy gone. She traced his footsteps from the peach orchard into the woods.

The entire countryside joined in the search that day, and in the days that followed. Bloodhounds followed the trail through the woods to an irrigation ditch in a field near the Reading Railway, where they lost the scent. Posses searched the woods and swamps for days.

"Billy's" mother believed he had been kidnaped, and only a few days ago said she had hoped that he would be restored to her by Thanksgiving day. She collapsed when told of his fate.

HITCHCOCK LOOKS FOR RATIFICATION, HE DECLARES, IN REPLY TO LODGE

Democrat Says Republican Senate Leader, in Advocating League as Campaign Issue, Evidently Is Thinking "More of Politics Than of Patriotism."

LODGE STATEMENT STIRS WASHINGTON

Generally Agreed His Action Has Advanced the Movement to Give People Chance to Decide Question for Themselves.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Democratic Leader Hitchcock, in a statement replying to the declaration of Republican Leader Lodge that the peace treaty issues should be settled in the coming campaign said today that he was confident a compromise would be worked out by which ratification could be secured.

Senator Hitchcock's statement follows:

"Senator Lodge expresses an ardent wish to carry the treaty and the reservations which the Senate defeated into the campaign as an issue.

"I regret to say that Senator Lodge is evidently thinking more of politics than he is of patriotism.

"To my mind the highest interests of the United States and of the world demand ratification of the treaty.

Lodge Reservations.

"The reservations to which Senator Lodge refers did not even receive a majority vote of the Senate although the party which Senator Lodge leads controls the Senate. His party is split on ratification in the Senate as well as throughout the country. The reservations were not framed for the purpose of ratifying the treaty. They were framed for the purpose of making it impossible for many supporters of the treaty to vote for ratification in that form.

"The reservations were supported by 15 Senators who would not vote for the treaty under any circumstances and who voted against every form of ratification. Those Senators, after helping Lodge to force these reservations upon the Senate, voted 'no' when the resolution containing them came to a vote.

"Reservations in the ratification of the treaty are inevitable, but they must be framed and agreed to by Senators who expect to vote for ratification. When the Senate meets in December there will be 81 Senators out of the 96 who favor ratification in some form. They are the ones to decide on what the reservations should be. When 64 of those Senators can agree upon reservations, as I believe they can agree, ratification will take place."

It is agreed everywhere that the statement issued last night by Senator Lodge, the Republican Senate leader, declaring the time for compromise had passed and that it was his desire that the majority reservation program be carried into the campaign has advanced materially the movement to leave the treaty situation just as it is for the present and give the people a chance to decide the issue next year.

Senator Hitchcock predicted that President Wilson would resubmit the treaty at the beginning of the next session of Congress on Dec. 1, and that a compromise would result.

It is admitted by the administration leaders, however, that they have no definite assurance the President will prefer that course to a postponement of further action until the people have spoken in 1920.

Lodge's Statement.

The declaration of Senator Lodge reversed the position he and most other Republican Senators had taken toward injection of the treaty into politics, and was accepted in congressional and official circles as clothed with an added significance by Lodge's conference with Will H. Hays, the Republican National Chairman, just before the unsuccessful fight on Wednesday for ratification with the majority reservations included. The statement follows:

I have no especial comment to make. The case is very simple. After four months of careful consideration and discussion, the reservations were presented to the Senate. They were purely American in their character, designed solely to Americanize the treaty and make it safe for the United States.

Under the President's orders, the followers of the administration in the Senate voted down those

OPERATORS OBJECT TO PAY PROPOSAL OF SECY. WILSON

Declare His Plan for Compromise to Settle Controversy With Miners Has Only Widened Breach.

EACH SIDE REJECTS OTHER'S PROPOSAL

Operators Offered 20 Per Cent Advance; Miners Asked for 40 Per Cent and a Seven-Hour Day.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Bituminous coal operators in the central competitive field declared today that Secretary Wilson's proposal to the Joint Wage Scale Committees yesterday had served only to widen the breach between the operators and miners.

"There are only a few more words to say, and they will be said very soon," declared Thomas T. Brewster, chairman of the operators, before entering the meeting of the Operators' Scale Committee.

It was understood that Secretary Wilson had proposed to the miners and operators yesterday an increase of 27.13 cents a ton for coal diggers, and $1.58 per day for day laborers. Some operators said this was wholly unsatisfactory to them.

No Formal Statement.

After the Scale Committee adjourned, the operators would make no formal statement, but some of them said privately they would go into session late today with the miners' representatives with a definite policy.

John L. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers of America, would not discuss Secretary Wilson's proposal, saying that it was agreed that happenings at the conference at which Secretary Wilson's offer was made were to be regarded by both sides as confidential.

At 2 o'clock today, Secretary Wilson again will preside over a joint conference of the operators and miners in the role of arbitrator. He is expected to suggest a compromise of the two offers of the principals and recommend a wage increase of about 31 per cent.

The operators have offered a 20 per cent wage increase and the miners agreed to accept a 40 per cent increase. The length of the work day has been left open, but the miners have abandoned their demands for a six-hour day and a five-day week and agreed to accept a seven-hour day and a six-day week, with Saturday half holiday. Both offers were withdrawn when they were not accepted and the miners and operators start the conference today with a clean calendar.

An embargo on export of anthracite coal, effective at once, has been announced by the Fuel Administration.

North Dakota Ordered to Turn Mines Back to Owners.

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 22.—The North Dakota Supreme Court today sustained the action of District Judge W. L. Nuessle of Bismarck, in ordering Gov. Lynn J. Frazier and Adjt. Gen. Frazer to immediately return to the private owners the lignite coal mines which have been seized and operated by the State.

MEASURE WOULD PROHIBIT "DON'T PARK HERE" SIGNS

Bill Proposes That Private Establishments Lose Privilege of Marking Off Sections of Sidewalk.

Hotels, stores, cafes and other establishmnets that now place "Don't Park Between These Posts" signs in front of their doors would be prohibited from doing so by a bill introduced in the Board of Aldermen yesterday, which provides that the Street Commissioner shall have sole power to say where such signs will be placed.

Some of the Aldermen felt that private establishments were assuming unwarranted control over the streets when they marked off certain sections of the sidewalk with such posts. Under the bill, the Street Commissioner could establish such posts where he deemed them necessary. A fine of $5 to $500 would be provided for persons who erect private signs.

Universe Gives Counsel to Faithful Sunphoners

They Pay No Tolls for Solar Connections Except Trifle Dropped in Their Chief's Collection Box.

Up near the roof of the Jefferson Hotel a little band of men and women are receiving messages from the sun every night. At least that is what they are being told by the "Chief Sunphoner of the Universe," who otherwise styles himself "T. J. Shelton, Preacher."

Shelton's followers are known as Sunphoners and they are taught to believe that by properly attuning themselves to the vibrations of the sun and by attending all the nightly meetings in Room 1028 at the Jefferson and participating in all the mystic rites, including the nightly collection, they will be connected with a solar telephone system which will give them counsel and advice in every crisis of life.

Each sunphoner has his own invisible sunphone, with unlimited service and no busy signals and no tolls to pay, except the unconsidered trifle which is dropped into Preacher Shelton's collection box.

Shelton holds forth in one of the hotel's large sample rooms, with his living quarters in an alcove separated from the meeting room by a screen.

Helped Girl Choose Dress.

Eighteen of the faithful, mostly women, who attended last night's meeting, heard Shelton's "secretary and vocalist," Miss Freda Weber, tell how her sunphone worked to her advantage yesterday in helping her to find "just the dress she wanted." In striking contrast with Shelton, Miss Weber is young, dark-eyed and vivacious. She takes up the collections and serves as the subject of Shelton's "mental clinics," through which he exemplifies his sunphony powers of telepathy and healing.

Mounting to the platform from which the more than middle-aged Shelton delivers his sermons, Miss Weber told this experience, the names of the firms mentioned being here changed for obvious reasons:

"It is perfectly wonderful what the sunphone can do for you. It helped me find a dress today. I shopped all day yesterday for a dress, but I couldn't find one that I wanted. I even went to Potash's, where they have the loveliest dresses, but nothing there suited me and the prices were so high. I was in despair when I went to bed. But this morning when I got up my sunphone said to me several times: 'Your dress is at Perlmutters.' I went out again today and when I was passing Potash's I saw such a crowd around the door that I had an earth thought that my dress must be there after all. I started to go into Potash's, but my sunphone spoke to me again and said: 'Your dress is at Perlmutter's.' I went to Perlmutter's and sure enough my dress was there. The first one I tried on was the very one I wanted—and at my own price, too."

Wonderful, Said the Faithful.

This exposition of the efficiency of the solar telephone exchange was greeted with handclapping by the faithful. Women in the little gathering exclaimed, "Isn't it wonderful!"

"You forgot something, Freda," said Preacher Shelton.

"What's that?" asked Freda.

"Why don't you dismiss the meeting?"

"O, yes, I forgot," said Freda, smiling. "You folks may go now." The collection had been taken up a few minutes before this.

The breaking-up of the meeting was delayed a few minutes longer while a man whose name was not announced told of his sunphony experiences. A man bought an engine from him on credit and without paying for it he sold it to another man. The speaker said he waited seven years for payment and then went to the second purchaser and claimed the engine as his, but this man said he was an innocent purchaser and did not see why he should pay the original owner or give up the engine.

"I had become a sunphoner," said the speaker. "I went home worried. In the middle of the night my sunphone told me what to say to that man. It told me to say: 'You've got to give me back that engine.' I went to him and told him that, but he wouldn't give it back. That looked pretty bad. I went to my office and my sunphone spoke again. It told me to say to him: 'If you don't give back that engine you'll never have another day's peace.' I put on my hat and I went right back to that man's place and when I got there he had that engine on a loading platform and there was a wagon backed up to the platform and I said: 'What are you going to do?' and he said: 'I'm going to send that damned engine back to your place, for something seemed to tell me that if I didn't I would never have a day's peace.' That's what sunphony will do for you."

Keeps Him "Full of Pep."

Shelton, who started the Sunphoners' cult in Chicago and has been here several weeks trying to organize a branch in St. Louis, is bald and a little fringe of hair that remains is gray. When speaking he makes vigorous gestures at times, rocks back and forth on his toes and heels and even occasionally does a few dance steps to show that sunphony is keeping him "full of pep," despite his obvious burden of years. He is smooth-faced and his black clothing enhances his clerical appearance.

His sermon last night was a somewhat rambling discourse on the universe in general, which, he said, was composed of nothing but sunlight and sun power. "Any other concept of things isn't worth a damn," he said. "Everybody knows what the three dimensions are," he said. "They are earth, air and water, but most people don't know much about the fourth dimension, and the fourth dimension is where we sunphoners live."

One of Shelton's tenets is that every atom of matter contains within itself the power of the entire universe. Taking a nickel from his pocket, he held it up and said: "There is enough power in this nickel, if suddenly released, to blow up this hotel."

"My," whispered one of the women sunphoners, "I had no idea a nickel would go as far as that." She dropped one in the collection box later in the evening.

LODGE'S DESIRE TO MAKE TREATY CAMPAIGN ISSUE STIRS WASHINGTON

reservations. It was also shown by a vote that there was a decisive majority against the treaty, with the reservations.

Those reservations as presented to the Senate will stand. There is no room for further compromise between Americanism and the super-government presented by the league. All I ask now is that we may have the opportunity to lay those reservations before the American people. To that great and final tribunal alone would I appeal.

I wish to carry those reservations into the campaign. I wish the American people to read and study them. They are not like the covenant of the league. They are simple. I do not see that there is one of them to which any American can object. I want the people to see them, understand them and think of them in every household, on every farm, in every shop and factory, throughout the land. Then let them decide.

President on Reservations.

In his letter advising Democratic Senators to vote against ratification with the majority reservations, President Wilson characterized them as constituting a nullification of the treaty.

Should he decline to resubmit the treaty, let matters stand for the present as they are, it is considered certain on all sides that the result would be to put the ratification fight squarely into the presidential contest. There is nothing to establish definitely that he would do so, however, and the course of the administration Senate leaders seems to indicate the opposite.

They are confronted with the fact, however, that the Republican group of mild reservationists, on whom hope of a compromise was placed, have served notice that any further compromise negotiations must be conducted with the Republican leader himself. The closing stages of the fight which preceded the ratification vote multiplied evidences of Republican solidarity behind the reservations, many decisions in the parliamentary maneuvering being decided by virtually strict party votes.

Even among the irreconcilable foes of the treaty on the Republican side the statement of Senator Lodge is accepte dwith satisfaction. Some of this group have said openly they would leave the party unless it declared next year for outright rejection of the league of nations covenant, with or without reservations, but they take the view that the situation is developing with a satisfactory speed. By the time the national convention meets, they predict, it would be ready to go further than Senator Lodge did in his statement.

The only expression of the President's intentions is a White House announcement early yesterday that he would have nothing to say until he sent his message to Congress at the beginning of the new session on Dec. 1. At that time, it was said, he would go into the treaty situation. Senator Underwood of Alabama, prominently mentioned for the Democratic leadership in the next session, talked over the outlook with Secretary Tumulty but did not see the President.

THIEF BANDAGES VICTIM'S EYES

A man who posed as a doctor to treat Gus Selber, 1014 North Eighteenth street, when he fell against a chair and injured his eye at his home yesterday, is being sought by police, following the reported theft of two watches from Selber's pockets. Selber said the "doctor" bandaged both his eyes, and then put him to bed, saying he would return later.

An hour later Selber learned of the disappearance of the watches. The "doctor" did not come back. He gave a fictitious name and address.

SUGAR PROBABLY WILL BE RATIONED UNDER WAR RULE

Placed Under Former Restrictions by President, Who Transfers Authority of Food Control to Palmer.

CAN EXTEND POWER OVER ALL FOODS

Such Action Not to Be Taken, However, Except as Extreme Measure if Made Necessary.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Sugar has been placed under wartime restrictions and probably will be rationed to the people in an effort to avert a threatened sugar famine. Because of the gravity of the situation, President Wilson has revised the wartime food control laws, still in effect, and has transferred authority of the Food Administrator to Attorney-General Palmer.

With the new cloak of power, the Attorney-General can exercise jurisdiction over all food supplies if he considers it necessary. He will not do this, it is said, except as an extreme measure, and will confine his present duties toward regulating sugar distribution.

Heavy purchases for foreign account are said to be the chief cause for the present sugar shortage. The United States has been securing 3,000,000 tons of sugar from Cuba annually, but this year it is reported European dealers have purchased more than 1,000,000 tons from Cuba and it is feared continued foreign buying will cause a dearth of sugar for the United States.

Plans of Palmer's Staff.

Palmer's staff will begin immediately to build up a sugar distributing system which will allocate all sugar stocks in the country. It will provide an equitable system of distributing supplies, and will defeat any concentration or hoarding, officials say.

Plans, tentatively decided upon, provide for increasing the price of all sugar, excepting the Louisiana crop, for which a price of 17 cents already has been fixed, to 12 cents a pound wholesale.

Through this increase new sources of supply are expected to be opened. With assurances that a fair margin of profit, said to be about $1.54 a hundred pounds, would be allowed, sugar refiners are ready to enter the Cuban markets and purchase all available stocks, is is stated.

Immediate action also is contemplated in curtailing the consumption of sugar by manufacturers whose products are not regarded as essential food. This will apply particularly to soft drink dealers and candy manufacturers. The abnormal increase of sales of these articles and the consequent heavy drain on the sugar supplies is traceable, officials declared to the enforcement of prohibition.

While it has not been definitely determined, the cut in sugar supplies to these classes of trade probably will be about 60 per cent. Officials indicated that if the exigencies of the situation demanded they would reduce the allowance to soft drink and candy plants to 25 per cent of their normal requirements.

Arrangements have been completed, subject to changing conditions of the sugar situation, whereby beet and cane sugar refiners will enter the Cuban markets immediately.

Sugar for United States.

The department, however, will exact a signed agreement with firms entering that trade to consign all of their purchases to this country. This will mean that American dealers will get a large proportion of the 4,000,000 tons of raw sugar yet available in Cuba, officials said.

The danger of a sugar famine will be greatest next month, it was said, as stocks are rapidly being depleted and in many sections already exhausted, and the necessity for garnering all available supplies from outside becomes daily more urgent.

Government Restores Newspaper.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 22.—Deputy United States Marshals yesterday returned to its owners the plant of the Seattle Union Record, a daily newspaper seized by the Government on Nov. 13, when its editor, E. B. Ault, and two members of its Board of Directors, were arrested, and charged with violating the espionage act.

MAN WHO SLASHED WOMAN DIES OF BULLET WOUNDS

Charles Tanner Succumbs to Injuries Inflicted by Unidentified Man at Sixth and Chestnut.

Charles Tanner, 35 years old, 4766 Spalding avenue, a bartender, died at the city hospital last night from wounds suffered Nov. 12 when shot in the jaw and hip by an unidentified man at Sixth and Chestnut streets.

A few hours before he was shot he had been arrested at Union Station after he had slashed Irene Owens, 29, 3316 St. Vincent avenue, on the face with a razor. She was about to board a train for Detroit when Tanner met her and asked her to remain in St. Louis. When she refused he drew the razor. Tanner and the girl had been sweethearts for some time, and Tanner believed he was being jilted for another.

After his arrest he was released on bond and was on his way to the Laclede Hotel, where he said he had a room, when he was shot.

Police investigating the shooting at the time arrested Clarence ("Gilie") Owens, proprietor of a saloon at Fourteenth street and Chouteau avenue, and a brother of the wounded girl. At the hospital Tanner said Owens was not the man who shot him and gave police the description of another man.

sation, in violation of the Constitution of the United States.

Charge Law Is Unconstitutional.

The petition says the complainant firms and corporations were organized for the manufacture and sale of whisky and they desire to establish their right in equity to continue to engage in that business until national prohibition becomes effective.

As has been done in similar suits brought elsewhere the whisky dealers allege that enforcement of the Volstead law is in violation of the eighteenth amendment which provides for national prohibition, because the eighteenth amendment specifically provides that the United States Government will not begin enforcing until one year after its ratification.

In view of the existence of that proviso in an amendment to the Constitution already ratified, the petition says, the Volstead act is unconstitutional in so far as it applies to war-time prohibition.

Fear Imposition of Penalties.

The petition sets forth that the ratification of the treaties with Germany and Austria probably will be deferred until after the Eighteenth Amendment goes into effect, Jan. 16, and that under the Volstead act the whisky dealers would be subjected to the imposition of penalties if they should attempt to sell their product.

It is asked that the injunction restrain the District Attorney from prosecuting for violations of the war-time prohibition and enforcement acts and that the Collector be restrained from refusing to receive taxes and issue stamps for the whisky held by the plaintiffs.

MAN CHARGED WITH SELLING SUGAR AT 22½ CENTS A POUND

A Federal warrant was issued today for F. C. Martin, 4001 Cote Brilliante avenue, charging violation of the Lever act in the sale of 1000 pounds of sugar at an unreasonable price.

George Georges, proprietor of the Standard Catering Co., 212 North Seventh street, complained to the District Attorney that Martin sold him the sugar at 22½ cents a pound, and refused to give a receipted bill. Georges refused to pay without a receipt, and Martin filed suit for the amount in a Justice Court.

United States Commissioner Machell, who issued the warrant, said he had information that the sugar was California beet sugar, for which the refineries are allowed to charge only 10½ cents a pound.

This is the fourth warrant for violation of the Lever act as to sugar issued here within two days.

Representatives at Every Roll Call.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Two members of the House—Box, Democrat, of Texas, and Ricketts, Republican, of Ohio—romped away with all attendance honors during the special session just closed, each having voted on all of the 214 roll calls. Clerks checking up found that they stood alone in this respect and at the top of the class.

DEPORTATION OF BOLSHEVIST "AMBASSADOR" TO BE SOUGHT

New York Prosecutor Says He Will Present Evidence Against Martens.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Facts warranting the deportation of Ludwig C. A. K. Marten's self-styled ambassador of the Russian Soviet Government, will be presented next Tuesday at his examination before the joint legislative committee investigating radical activities here, Deputy Attorney-General Berger announced today.

Evidence will be produced to show that Martens is the Russian communist chief propagandists in this country and not a commercial or financial representative at all, Berger declared.

"Martens has absolutely no standing and he will be treated the same as any ordinary ignorant alien," asserted Berger.

OFFICIALS IN POLICEMEN'S UNION IN BELLEVILLE FIRED

Trades Assembly There Expects Mayor's Action to Be Overruled by Two-Thirds of City Council.

Mayor Johnson of Belleville met the issue with the policemen's union there today when he discharged Frank Wolff, president, and Warren Sexton, secretary, of the union, and gave notice that if his action in so doing is upheld by the City Council, he will discharge every man on the force who does not give up his membership.

Two-thirds of the City Council can overrule the Mayor and order the men reinstated, and it was predicted at the Central Trades and Labor Assembly today that this will happen. Several of the Councilmen are union men themselves, and union men and their wives compose a large majority of the voting population.

The Central Trades and Labor Assembly yesterday passed a resolution condemning Mayor Johnson for his attitude, and indorsing the refusal of the policemen's union to surrender its charter in the American Federation of Labor. It was stated that the dissolution of the union was sought "by certain persons and concerns that will profit by its death." Previously, a telegram was received from Frank Morrison, secretary of the Federation, advising the assembly to aid the policemen in retaining their charter.

Schleinkofer was 40 years old, and the proprietor of the Ideal Tool & Machine Co., 22 South Broadway. He resided with his wife, Elizabeth, at 3119 Nebraska avenue. No reason for his act could be learned. Two women and two men were standing near him when he ended his life.

Members of his family said he attended church regularly. A son and a daughter survive, in addition to his wife.

"Ever been in here before?" asked the Judge. "Once," replied Levins.

"What happened?" "I was fined $10."

"Did you pay it?" "No, I fixed it."

"All right, see if you can fix this —$100 and costs," rejoined the Judge, and Levins was led out. He participated in a fight at Sixth and Market streets Saturday night.

LABOR PARTY WANTS "RIGHT OF FREE SPEECH" RESTORED

Chicago Convention Also Favors Nationalization of Mines and Abolitio nof Farm Land Speculation.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Immediate restoration of the "rights of free speech," nationalization of mines, abolition of all "speculation" in agricultural lands and the destruction of monopolies in natural resources are features in the political platform of the National Labor Party, as the keynote speech of Max Hayes, Cleveland, established today, in opening the convention here. More than a thousand dollars arrived. Representatives of farmers' organizations are attending the convention, although it is said not a great number were invited.

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, who was instrumental in calling the convention, opened it with an address of welcome.

It is impossible that candidates will be nominated for presidency of the Unite dStates, as previously reported, he added, as it is desired to defer that action until the next year's convention of the party, when it is hoped it will be more strongly organized.

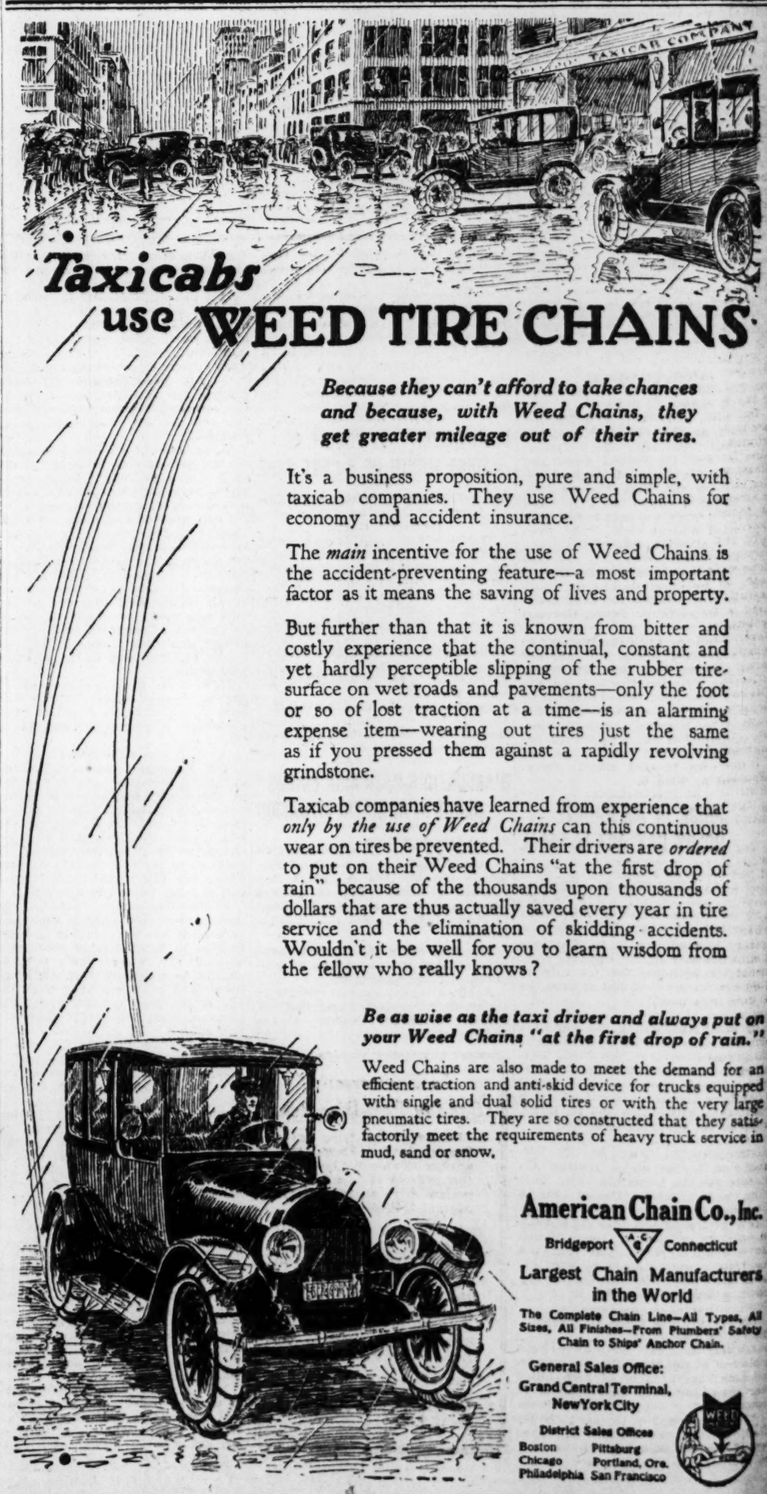

Circulars signed by eight delegates accusing the "money power" with having bribed lawmakers to take from the workingman the privilege of drinking beer and wine by the enactment of constitutional prohibition were distributed.

The convention will be in session all day Sunday and a mass meeting will be held tomorrow night to discuss the coal strike. It is planned to close the convention Tuesday night.

Not many days ago a tragedy occurred in Centralia, Wash., and the attention of the country was focussed on the activities of the I. W. W.s. Not many weeks before that bombs were thrown, and the life of the Attorney-General himself was threatened. Yet, since the subject was broached in Congress on June 14, last, although 70 bills have been introduced to deal with radicalism, not one was placed on the statute books—and Congress serenely adjourned this week without so much as a public statement of its intentions or the reasons for its failure to act upon a danger to the public welfare.

Need of Laws Shown.

For, the fact is, upon the authority of the Attorney-General himself, that there are today no laws which make it a crime to preach anarchy or sedition. Moreover, those who have attempted to bring about the forcible overthrow of the Government of the United States have committed no crime unless their acts amount to treason, rebellion or seditious conspiracy.

To prove conspiracy, the acts of two persons acting in collusion must be clearly unlawful. Individually, therefore, a person may go the limit at present, and cannot be punished unless some one else co-operates with him or her in the planning of the crime.

Furthermore, "rebellion" and "treason" have been defined as levying war or giving aid and comfort to the enemies of the United States.

But the advising of defiance of law is not a crime under the general criminal laws, whether the same be done by printing and circulating of literature or by the spoken word. Nor is it a crime to advise and openly advocate the unlawful obstruction of industry and the unlawful and violent destruction of property.

To test existing statutes, the Department of Justice has brought various suits with the same result. Indeed, an anarchistic organization in operation in Buffalo, N. Y., circulated a manifesto appealing to the proletariat to arise and destroy the Government of the United States and substitute Bolshevism. After advocating the assassination of public officials, the document declared: "Make way for Bolshevism for the Department of Labor, mines, railways, fields, factories and shops—let the soviets be organized promptly."

It openly advocated rebellion thus: "Proclaim yourself openly an anarchist. Let the revolution come. Hail to the immaculate and redeeming anarchy."

Case Was Dismissed.

Yet what happened in that case? Judge Hazel of the Western District of New York dismissed the case and discharged the defendant. Here is what he said and why he did it:

"I do not think that Congress, when it enacted this law (the conspiracy statutes) had in mind such a situation as that—had in mind the circulation of literature such as this. I do not think, giving the provisions a fair interpretation, that it embraces any such offense at all. There may be a statute which makes it a crime for any person to conspire for the circulation of literature of this character, but my attention has not been called to it."

And, of course, Judge Hazel was right, for no statute of that character does exist, but Congress since has been requested repeatedly by the Department of Justice to enact one. All doubt of the constitutionality of the statute to curb radicalism or revolutionary doctrine and the power of Congress to make laws limiting the rights of free speech and free press in order to protect the United States Government and the people of America from revolution, has been swept away now by decisions just handed down within the last fortnight by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Justice Holmes, while delivering a dissenting opinion in the case of a particular defendant charged with a violation of the espionage act in circulating a leaflet of disloyalty during war time, made this significant pronouncement:

"I do not doubt for a moment that, by the same reasoning that would justify punishing persuasion to murder, the United States constitutionally may punish speech that produces or is intended to produce a clear and imminent danger, that it will bring about forthwith certain substantive evils that the United States constitutionally may seek to prevent. The power undoubtedly is greater in time of war than in time of peace because war opens dangers that do not exist at other times."

Justice Holmes went on to say that publishing of opinions for the very purpose of obstructing the processes of Government would constitute an attempt to create danger for the Government. Indeed, any effort to change the mind of the country by means of constitutional amendment or political processes is defensible and outside of the jurisdiction of Congress, but any attempt that includes physical force and violence as means of changing the mind of the country constitute sedition in the judgment of the Department of Justice and some of the best authorities on law in the United States.

Congress Had Full Power.

So, while it was evident that Congress had full power to deal with radicalism, both in the press and in public meeting, and that revolutionary preachment and writings having in mind the use of physical force could clearly be punished, both the Senate and House have neglected to do anything at all about it in the several months in which Congress has just been in session.

Soon the espionage law, which was enacted for war time only and whose usefulness has been gravely doubted since the armistice, will be repealed, and, unless Congress acts to retain that section of it which refers to search warrants, the United States will be without a Federal law to make searches and seizures. This would play into the hands of the radicals and anarchists, who know full well their rights and who could not be raided as heretofore and their effects examined if the espionage law passes out of existence.

But, if Congress is careless itself about the matter of radicalism, despite the high-sounding speeches that have been made by the politicians, the States of the Union are not so backward, though only eight of them have good laws to protect themselves against anarchy and radicalism. Good state laws are to be found in California, Indiana, Michigan, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Washington and West Virginia, but these must be supplemented by Federal statutes to gather in all the anarchists and revolutionists in the country.

Incidentally, it is upon the states that the Federal Government relies chiefly for detection of crime. New York City alone has 12,000 policemen, all of whom are charged with the duty of investigation, while in the Department of Justice under an appropriation granted by Congress the maximum number of men engaged in investigating the violations of all the laws of the United States is limited to about 500 for the entire United States.

Everybody knows that the treaty of peace could have been debated and voted upon in half the time that was devoted to that subject in the last session of Congress, yet vital matters, such as the domestic safety, were calmly ignored by the Republican majority which controlled both houses and compelled adjournment.

Schreiber Stuck to Horses Though Law Killed Racing

Turfman Kept "String" to Last for Sentiment Though Fortune Had Vanished and Expense Was Heavy.

Bonaventure (Barney) Schreiber, once noted turfman, who died of apoplexy in a Cincinnati hotel yesterday in comparative poverty, will be buried in St. Louis Monday. The funeral will be from an undertaker's chapel at 3621 Olive street, with services at St. Francis Xavier's Church, Grand avenue and Lindell boulevard, at 9 a. m.

Schreiber, at one time one of the most noted horse breeders in the United States, and also a bookmaker and owner of famous winners on many tracks, was rated as being "worth" more than $1,000,000 when horseracing was legislated out of existence in Missouri in 1905.

Though most of his property was rendered valueless by this action, followed by a similar legislation in other states, Schreiber remained a "horseman" until the end of his days. At the time of his death he was still the owner of a small "string" of racers.

Stuck to Horses.

John Ticasey, a former trainer for Schreiber, now employed by Tom Kearney, a St. Louis follower of the turf, yesterday said that sentiment more than anything else caused Schreiber to "stick to the horse" after his fortunes had been shattered. Other former associates of Schreiber here said that in recent years Schreiber's small racing stable had been a liability rather than an asset and that he was often perilously near being "down and out."

Ticasey was one of Schreiber's retainers in the period when "Barney," hoping against hope, tried to recoup his fortunes by running a stock farm near Sacramento, Cal., after the law had banished racing from Missouri.

Schreiber's California "horse ranch," like the one in St. Louis County, where he made his fortune, was called "Woodlands." For a time it was a rival of the noted stock farms of J. B. Haggin and "Lucky" Baldwin, Ticasey said, but he added: "It was no use. The race horse was booked for the skids, the way they got booze booked now."

Conducted Private Meetings.

The St. Louis County "Woodlands" near Bridegton was one of the show places of the county. In the prosperous days Schreiber each year conducted a private race meeting there. Admission was by special invitation from Schreiber and these invitations were eagerly sought by men of millions in the racing game. There were no "pikers," "touts" or small-fry bookmakers at these "meetings," which lasted a week or more, in which period Schreiber was a lavish host to all of the invited guests.

While the "book value" of Schreiber's holdings at that time was considered to be more than $1,000,000 it was said the potential value of his stock farm would have been much greater than this, if racing had been continued. For a stallion Sain, a horse of fine ancestry and offspring, he once refused a price said to be between $125,000 and $150,000. Another horse, Jack Atkin, which Schreiber still owned at the time of his death, had won for him more than $100,000 in stakes and purses on the race track.

Honesty a Characteristic.

Ticasey yesterday said Schreiber's uprightness in conducting his stock farm and in his bookmaking and racing operations was one of his leading characteristics. He cited an instance where Schreiber had closed a deal for the sale of his famous racing mare Geheimniss for $40,000, but before making the delivery discovered she had a fever. He canceled the sale, saying that he would not sell a horse that was not in perfect condition. Geheimniss died of this fever and the opportunity to "pick up" $40,000 was gone.

This horse like many others in Schreiber's large string, was buried with formal funeral ceremonies, Ticasey said. "A horse held Barney's affection just as a human being would," said the old-time trainer. "I've seen him bury many of them with funeral honors. I remember one that died in California and Barney thought it deserved a fine resting place, and he got Lucky Baldwin to let him bury it in a beautiful spot on Baldwin's farm, with orange and olive trees all around it."

Kept "Woodlands" for Years.

Schreiber, though crippled in fortune, retained the title to "Woodlands" in St. Louis County for several years after racing was put out of Missouri.

Records at Clayton show that on June 10, 1910, he sold 158 acres of the property to Leon Preiver for the stated nominal price of $1. In October, 1911, he sold 529 acres to J. Allen Ware for $125,000. At that time there were five deeds of trust on the property, aggregating $76,500. The records show 133 acres are still held in Ware's name. These are taxed at an assessed valuation of $120 an acre and the improvements are assessed at $12,000.

Ware sold 293 acres of the property to Robert M. Brown Jan. 6 last, the stated consideration was $500.

Negro Students Visit Police Court.

Seventy-five negro students in civics from Sumner High School, with their teacher, Miss Elizabeth Brown, were spectators in police court this morning in pursuance of their studies. Judge Mix reviewed the work of his court for their benefit during the session. Later, they visited the jail and dispensary. Civics students from various high schools have been visiting city institutions.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Ttablets Are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c. —ADV.

PRINCE DECORATES 100 BEFORE DEPARTURE

"I Have Had a Splendid Time, and Hope to Be Back Soon," He Tells Soldiers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—More than 100 American and British officers, sailors and soldiers were decorated today by the Prince of Wales in a farewell ceremony on the Battle Cruiser Renown, upon which he will sail today for Halifax on his way to England.

On the quarter deck of the great warship, under a canopy of flags of the allied nations, more than 100 men, headed by Major-General George W. Goethals, received the insignia of his honor and a good-by handshake. After the official list of honors had been completed the Prince furnished a surprise by summoning Major-General John Biddle and Rear Admiral A. P. Niblack, who have been attached to his party during his stay in the United States, and Major-General John F. O'Ryan, who commanded New York's Twenty-seventh Division, and making them commanders of the Victorian order.

Representatives of the State and city governments and men and women who have entertained him in New York then shook the Prince's hand and bade him Godspeed and au revoir.

"Had a Splendid Time."

"I have had a splendid time," he remarked. "I am only sorry that I am unable to stay longer and I hope to return and see more of your country."

After the reception the Prince came ashore and reviewed 5000 Boy Scouts on a beach along the Hudson.

The Prince laid a wreath on the grave of Theodore Roosevelt yesterday, and in the afternoon the young British heir was host to 1000 school children on board the Renown.

After the reception to the children the Prince went ashore and spent an hour at his favorite game of squash at the Racquet Club. Later he was the guest at dinner of the Pilgrims' Club, following which he attended a performance at the Hippodrome. The last item on the day's program was a reception at the Seventh Regiment Armory, which lasted until long after midnight.

Attends Pilgrims' Dinner.

The Prince attended the Pilgrims' dinner wearing the uniform of a Captain of the British navy. More than 1000 guests were present. The Right Rev. Charles Sumner Burch, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of New York, said grace. Chauncey M. Depew, president of the Pilgrims' Society, was toastmaster.

"There are two things which I should like to say before leaving the United States," the Prince said, "and particularly to a gathering like this tonight. I have already alluded when addressing other New York gatherings to the important part played by the United States in the great war, but I have never properly expressed British admiration for the promptness with which the American nation adopted compulsory enlistment for the emergency. That made the whole world feel that the weight of this great nation would be thrown into the balance with the utmost rapidity, as indeed it was.

"There is yet another form of your war service to which I have never alluded before—a very remarkable form, which made a deep impression on the peoples of the British Empire. I refer to the whole-hearted way in which the American nation accepted voluntary rationing in food and fuel. You all made a splendid response in this respect to the national appeal issued by Mr. Hoover, by whose devotion and organizing power so much suffering and want have been alleviated in the countries hardest hit by the war. That act alone shows with what spirit the American nation can throw itself into a great cause.

The U. S.-Canadian Border.

"There is one other thing to which I should like to refer tonight, not only because it has impressed me with new force during my travels on this continent, but also because it is an actual and visible example of the objects and aims which the Pilgrims Society was formed to promote. I do not think anywhere else in the world except on the North American continent will you find a frontier between two nations 3000 miles long with no extensive physical barriers, no military defenses, no other dividing line than a boundary determined by mutual confidence and good will.

"As a Britisher and as a Canadian, I take high pride in that boundary—the international frontier between Canada and the United States—for it seems to me to illustrate in a very striking and practical way the objects for which Americans and Britishers fought in the great war. Just think of it—the ideal which appears so difficult of attainment elsewhere has been an actual and positive reality in North America for over 100 years.

"I have asked myself how that ideal has been attained here so much in advance of international conditions in other parts of the world, and I think the answer is quite clear. It has been attained because you, on your side of the international boundary, and we Britishers, on ours, have under somewhat different forms the same political faith, the same human aims, the same political ideals. These two self-governing peoples, living side by side, each confident in the good will of the other, have given this splendid example to the world."

The Prince was presented with a silver loving cup containing a bouquet of roses. It bore an inscription attesting to the fact he had been elected as honorary member of the Pilgrims of the United States.

EVERY MOMENT IS LIVELY ON CAR OF "BEST CONDUCTOR"

He Calls Names of Streets and Principal Points Along Olive-Delmar Line.

There have been no idle moments on Olive-Delmar car 394 since Conductor Lee Jackson, 5810 Victoria avenue, assumed charge.

He is full of what authors call "local color," and as his car journeys from Delmar Garden to Fourth street and back he keeps the strap-hangers guessing. His manner of announcing the principal cross streets and intersecting lines reminds the passengers of the monologue usually heard on a "rubber-neck" bus.

The mere fact that Jackson is about the only conductor in St. Louis who still follows the old custom of calling off streets is enough to entitle him to space in the hall of fame, but the entertaining manner in which he does it attracts attention.

He became a conductor in the World's Fair year, and, until a year ago, was on the Laclede line. He was referred to by a traveling man who wrote a letter about him as "the politest conductor in the United States." Two months ago he was transferred from a daylight run to a special night car, working from midnight until 8 a. m.

"Let's get to town, good people," is one of his expressions when passengers are slow in boarding the car. "Move forward, please, we must conserve space."

"All off for the shimmy and tickle-toe," he shouts as the car approaches the dance-hall district around Grand avenue.

Persons are reminded of their destination by Jackson, who seldom neglects to call out the names of popular cafes and movie theaters along the line.

Says Drys Gain in South America.

Thomas W. Voette, American Consul at Antofagosta, Chile, who was in St. Louis yesterday on his way back to his station, said that the temperance movement is gaining in South America. In Chile, he said, the drys have made such progress that beginning next Jan. 1 a law will go into effect reducing the number of standing grape vines in Chile by one-half. The leading newspaper there advocated temperance, he said.

38 Sugar Dealers Arrested in Chicago

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Thirty-eight members of 14 wholesale sugar firms were arrested yesterday on Federal warrants charging profiteering in violation of the Lever food control act. They were charged with exacting an exorbitant price or conspiracy to obtain an excessive price for sugar.

SPENCER 'NOT THINKING OF NOT RUNNING AGAIN'

Can Conceive of No Reason Why He Should Not Be Candidate, Senator Declares.

Senator Selden P. Spencer, who arrived in St. Louis today to remain until Congress reconvenes Dec. 1, definitely set at rest reports circulated by some Republican politicans that he would not be a candidate for re-election. The Senator said he never had had any other idea than that he would seek re-election.

He indicated that he was very well satisfied with the job of being Senator, and intended to hold onto it as long as possible.

"I have made no public announcement of my intentions," he said, "because I saw no occasion to do so. However, I will say that I can conceive of no reason why I should not be a candidate for renomination and election. I never have even considered not being a candidate.

"As to the vote to override the veto of the President on the prohibition enforcement law, none of us in Washington considered that it meant anything. If the veto had been permitted to stand, the ban would not have been lifted. War-time prohibition would have been in effect just the same. We were greatly surprised when we found there were objections from St. Louis to the stand the Republicans in the Senate took."

Spencer said he was confident the peace treaty with the Foreign Relations Committee reservations would be ratified very soon after Congress reconvenes. He said he believed the reservations necessary, and that either the treaty with them would be ratified, or, if that failed, the resolution declaring war with Germany at an end would be passed.

TRAIN BANDIT SENDS CARD TO DENVER CHIEF OF POLICE

Also Writes Letters to Newspapers Saying He Will Be Heard From Next in Texas.

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 22.—Possibility that the train bandit, William L. Carlisle, is in Denver was forced upon local police officers today by letters mailed here to Denver newspapers and a postcard addressed to Chief of Police Hamilton Armstrong, purporting to have been written by Carlisle.

"Next time you hear from me I'll be in Texas," the postcard said. In his letters to the newspapers, the author said he would try the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad next.

Little credence was placed in the letters at first. One was sent to an afternoon newspaper and another to a morning paper. A Union Pacific official at Cheyenne telephoned to Denver and asked that the letters be sent there for examination. "That is an old Carlisle trick," said the official. "They are very apt to be genuine." The letters were mailed by special delivery to Cheyenne for comparison with the bandit's handwriting.

The postcard to Chief Armstrong was dropped in the postoffice shortly after midnight. As soon as it was found by a postal clerk the police department was notified. The postcard said:

"Hello Chief. I have had a nice time. You have a bunch of good fellows. They showed me around. Next time you hear from me I will be in Texas."

Union Pacific officials at Cheyenne, however, are not counting on the absence of Carlisle from that State. Since the robbery of the Los Angeles limited Tuesday night the railroad has kept two armed guards on every passenger train. The Cheyenne railroad men are confident another robbery will be attempted.

$900,000 Stolen Securities Recovered.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Nearly $900,000 worth of securities stolen in this city by messengers has been recovered, the District Attorney's office announced today. Of this amount approximately $500,000 worth was found in Washington depositories, $242,500 here and $140,000 in Philadelphia. It was said the District Attorney expected the amount located here would reach $500,000 before tonight.

FAIR PRICE BODY ISSUES SHOE TABLE

Publishes Amounts Charged by Dealers, Reiterating Impracticability of Setting Shoe Prices.

The St. Louis Fair Price Committee has issued a table of retail prices now being charged for shoes in St. Louis, with comparative figures showing the cost to the dealer at the time of purchase, and the wholesale price which it says the dealers would now have to pay for the same goods. The committee says the retail prices are based on actual cost to the dealers, rather than on replacement cost. The table given is:

Retail Price.	Cost.	Gross Profit.	Per Cent Replacement Cost.
$12	$7 95	32.75	$11 00
10	6 81	31.9	9 25
8	5.72	28.5	7 50
6	4 21	29.83	5 75
5	3 52	29.6	4 25
4	2 80	30	3 10
3	2 16	28	2 75
2	1 43	28.5	2 00

The overhead cost of conducting shoe stores is given as 25 to 33 per cent.

The committee repeats its previous statement that it is not practicable to make a fair price list for shoes, because of the widely varying names and brands. Advertisements in the daily papers form the best price list, the committee says. C. E. Williams, a retail shoe dealer, is chairman of the shoe subcommittee of the Fair Price Committee.

MARY PICKFORD WINS SUIT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Mrs. Gladys Mary Moore, known to motion picture "fans" as Mary Pickford, was awarded a verdict by a jury here yesterday in a suit instituted by Mrs. Cora C. Wilkening, a play broker, who alleged that she had obtained a contract for Miss Pickford with the Famous Players Corporation at a salary of $1,080,000, and that a 10 per cent commission was due her.

At a previous trial a jury had decided in favor of Mrs. Wilkening, but the Appellate Division set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial.

The beauty of the IDEAL-Arcola method is that no cellar is needed. Everything is on one floor. The Arcola is placed in any room that has a chimney connection. No running to cellar. If there are two or more tenants in the building, each can have his own Arcola and make the temperature to suit his own needs—can make his own climate! If you do not wish at first to heat the entire building, buy a small size IDEAL-Arcola and later on buy extra sections for the IDEAL-Arcola and two or three more radiators to warm more rooms.

ADVENTURES IN PROPAGANDA. By Capt. Heber Blankenhorn, U. S. A. The author was attached to the Military Intelligence Division of the General Staff of our army in the recent war.

IRELAND AND ENGLAND. by Edward R. Turner. An impartial, comprehensive and authoritative history of Ireland in relation to England, covering especially the efforts of Ireland to gain independence.

CHINA, AN INTERPRETATION. By J. W. Bashford. Especially interesting is the author's account of literature, religion and political life in China.

CRIME AND CRIMINALS. By Charles Mercier. The author takes the view that the study of crime and its causes is properly the study of criminal or anti-social action by individual offenders, rather than that any science or "criminology" can be founded on generalizations drawn from observations of convicted criminals en masse.

TALES OF LAUGHTER. By Kate Douglas Wiggin and Nora Archibald Smith. Fairy tales and fables with a laugh or a smile to them. They have been drawn from the folk-lore and fairy literature of the old Celtic, Scandinavian, Russian, Indian, Chinese, and many other tongues.

THE PRELUDE TO BOLSHEVISM. By A. F. Kerensky. Mr. Kerensky's personal story of the events which led up to the Kornilov rising, at one of the most critical periods in the Russian revolution, is a volume of great historical importance. A valuable feature of the book is an alphabetical "Who's Who" and "Where's Where," containing biographies of Russian notabilities and descriptions of places.

A CENTURY OF SCIENCE IN AMERICA. By Edward S. Dana and others. This volume contains the Silliman lectures delivered at Yale University in 1918, as well as chapters on the progress made during the last hundred years in the branches of scientific study. Each chapter is written by a scientist who is eminent in his particular field of research.

THE HUMAN NEED OF LABOR. By Seebohm Rowntree. What are the human needs of labor? At what cost can they be supplied? Can industry bear this cost? If not, can it be met in any other way? Answers to these questions along with the discussion of minimum wages for men and women, form the greater proportion of the book.

A RARE A. E. F. BOOK.

OF all the books that have been written about America in the war, none of them has quite the flavor and spirit of the A. E. F. that are found in the book of drawings by C. LeRoy Baldridge, published under the title, "I Was There: With the Yanks in France."

Readers of "The Stars and Stripes," which was the newspaper of the A. E. F., will remember that Baldridge's drawings were one of its many bright features. Most of his drawings presented by that paper are republished in this collection, together with many others that he made during his two years' service in France.

Baldridge, who is an Illinoisan, was one of those impetuous young Americans who beat their Government to the war. He enlisted with the French army in 1917 and had seen a year's service as driver of a French ammunition truck before the American army began operations in the war zone. Early in 1918, he was taken over by Gen. Pershing's forces and was assigned to duty because of his artistic talent with the publication force of the A. E. F. To enable him to get material for his drawings, he was sent into every offensive with the U. S. army from Chateau-Thierry on to the Rhine. He entered the army as a private and he remained a private throughout the war, a fact of which he is proud.

The best of the drawings that he made in his two years' service are shown here under most favorable conditions for reproduction. A very handsome volume they make. The humor as well as the pathos of the A. E. F. in the war is set forth impressively. No words can quite convey what Baldridge tells with his brush and pencil. The men who served with the A. E. F. will find it a remarkably faithful record of their own experiences "over there." Occasional verses by Hilmer J. Baukhage are scattered through the volume. (Putnam.)

A STORY OF THE SEA.

THE SEA BRIDE, by Ben Ames Williams, is full of thrills.

The bride, Faith Kilcup, on the eve of her wedding to Noll Wing, embarks on a voyage with her husband on a whale-hunting expedition, where they encounter many hardships through the intriguing of her former sweetheart, who is a mate on the vessel.

The young husband is an addict to liquor, and while under its influence jumps overboard, leaving his wife mistress of the boat; she falls in love with the third mate who comes to her assistance when threatened by her former sweetheart, who proved the undoing of her dead husband. (Macmillan.)

A JOLLY ROMAINE ROLLAND STORY.

ADMITTING that he wrote it in the midst of a reaction from the solemn strain of composing the 10 volumes of "Jean Christophe," Romaine Rolland has given us a surprising creation—surprising to himself as well as to his readers, he confesses, in a jolly tale of old Burgundy in his native France, timed some 300 years ago. It is called "Colas Breugnon." A preface shows that it was written and ready for publication in 1914 when the world war broke. A second preface tells how, with the war ended and Colas Breugnon's descendants having experienced nearly five years of fire and sword and coming forth heroes as great as any France ever produced, the manuscript was brought forth from storage to be given to the world.

It is a narrative of the life of the French peasant of 300 years ago, and a happy life it was, a life of simplicity and contentment so delightfully pictured as to make us all envious of Colas and his compeers, even though they are dead these hundreds of years.

Colas, a woodcarver by avocation, also is a poet and a dreamer, in that he sees the visions that are vouchsafed only to poets and dreamers. His store of humor and philosophy is inexhaustible. He counts himself rich, too, for he writes, "I own a house, a wife, four boys and a girl (thank God, she is married), 18 grandchildren, a gray donkey, a dog, six hens and a pig." Some of his philosophy is as pertinent now as it was then. For instance:

> I see all sorts of useless grumblers around me; they say I have picked out a queer time to shout in, that we are in a sad state now; but no state is sad, there are only dreary people, and I am not one of them, the Lord be praised! • • • The future is yours, my sons—but I like it better where I am, it is safer on the whole, and how can I be sure that wine will be as good in four centuries from now? • • • Blessed be the day when I saw the light! How many glorious things there are on this round ball, things which smile at you, and taste sweet. Life is good, by the Lord! I always hunger for more, no matter how much I stuff myself. I give you my word, my mouth fairly waters before the feast spread for me by the earth and the sun.

In the later years of his life, misfortunes overtake Colas, the plague works havoc in his family, his good wife dies and his beloved granddaughter is brought near to the grave. But his optimism still prevails:

> The only fault I have to find with this good life of ours is that it is too short. I don't feel as if I had had my money's worth, and, though I may be told that to be satisfied with what has fallen to my lot, I can only say that I should like to have more, a second slice of cake, if I could get it without making too much fuss.

Very different from "Jean Christophe" is "Colas Breugnon." One is full of laughter as the other of tragedy. Speaking of the spirit of reaction in which he wrote "Colas Breugnon," Rolland says: "I felt the absolute need of something gay, in the true Gallic spirit." He was making his first visit in many years to his dear old Burgundy, and it "roused all the Colas Bruegnons under my skin so that I was forced to speak for them." The story has been very effectively translated by Katherine Miller. (Henry Holt & Co.)

"PARIS OF THE NOVELISTS."

A LITERARY guide book that will be equally interesting to those who expect to go to France and those who do not is "The Paris of the Novelists," by Arthur Bartlett Maurice. The author is an American, but recently connected with the Commission for the Relief of Belgium, and he writes with a crisp and racy American flavor. It has been his fad for many years, during numerous visits to France and to Paris, to follow the trails of notable characters in the fiction of French setting, and he takes his readers over these romantic routes, telling how the scenes described in great stories look today. He thus imparts a new flavor to the works of Dumas, Balzac, Hugo, Thackeray, Dickens, De Maupassant, Flaubert, Daudet and many others. It is invaluable as a reference book for the readers of the works that are covered by it. (Doubleday, Page & Co.)

A WAR MYSTERY STORY.

IT requires several pages of rather dull reading before Elizabeth Robins gets her novel of love and mystery, "The Messenger," going at full tilt, but when it does get fairly well started there is something doing all the time.

The plot concerns a German woman spy who is employed as governess in an English family. The confidence the English Lord and his family impose in their governess is none too creditable in them and gives her opportunities that she craftily makes use of to the advantage of the Germans. There is also an American girl, whose sweetness and prettiness are her chief asset, and who helps the spy to get things well mixed up.

In the great mass of war stories, "The Messenger" comes as near to an original theme as any, and, except for the first few chapters, is very readable. (Century.)

KOROLENKO STORIES.

THOSE who have read "Makar's Dream and Other Stories," by Vladimir Korolenko, will want to read "Birds of Heaven," which volume, in addition to this story, contains four other tales by Russia's leading short-story writer. The translation is by Prof. Clarence Augustus Manning and is well done. The tales are selected to show the versatility of Korolenko. (Duffield.)

HERGESHEIMER'S NEW NOVEL.

WITH a plot purely psychological in its development and without dramatic situation or appeal, yet "Linda Condon," Joseph Hergesheimer's new novel, holds the interest of the reader to the end because of the extraordinary revelations of the soul of the woman who is its central figure. Hergesheimer has achieved the artistic triumph of creating a girl who wins our sincere sympathy and pity though under ordinary conditions her coldness and selfishness, her outward indifference to life itself, her apparent lack of generosity and of capacity to inspire confidence and affection, would make her unlovely and unattractive. We pity her and sympathize with her because she has been the victim of circumstance from childhood. As we see her, she is wholly the creature of environment, and we not only forget and forgive what would make her repulsive if she were to blame but see her in a light that accentuates her loveliness, albeit of a boreal quality.

Almost from babyhood, her wonderfully blond and beautiful mother has drilled into her the belief that the beauty of her body is the only thing in the world worth considering. The function of beauty in women is to attract men and the greatest achievement to which a woman can aspire is to marry a man who is able to give her all the money she needs to gratify all her whims. Linda had no schooling beyond this. She led a nomadic life with her mother gadding from northern to southern hotels and back again with the seasons Beyond the nursing of her beauty, her mother was not a particular person. She drank too much and she was a bit promiscuous in the choice of her male associates. She got herself talked about by hotel cats who sat about the lobbies and envied her the good time she was having and which was denied to them because of certain conventional restraints they were afraid to defy. It was no wonder that Linda grew up in selfishness and ignorance of the finer aspirations of womanhood. She becomes a wonderfully beautiful creature with a dwarfed soul, worshiping her own body and caring deeply for nothing else in the world.

Hergesheimer permits her to rise near to the heights of love, almost to feel the tender passion, with a sculptor as the object of her interest. But her training rescues her before the attachment culminates in marriage and she weds a rich man, her cousin, 20 years older than she, whom she does not love, a perfectly orthodox union in the light of her maternal instruction though it happens that her mother does not approve the particular man for family reasons. So she becomes to Dodge Pleydon, the sculptor, merely a happy memory that develops into an inspiration that moves him to his greatest work. Perhaps, if she had married Pleydon instead of Arnaud Hallett, she might have known what it was eventually to love. But she never loved Hallett though she bore him two lovely children. Always she felt that she had treated Pleydon shabbily and, in time, this became such an obsession that we are treated to the extraordinary spectacle of Linda, after her own children are married and she realizes finally that age is creeping upon her, and putting wrinkles into her beautiful body of her deliberately leaving her own home and going to Pleydon to live openly with him. But on her arrival, she finds that she has, indeed, become to him a dream and a memory which bar any reality of association. Back to her home she goes to resume her association with Arnaud Hallett, whom she disturbs in the midst of a harrowing dream that she has been about to leave him. This is the only time she wavers in her loyalty to her husband.

So cleverly has Mr. Hergesheimer constructed his story that we read more in sorrow than in anger of Linda's impending desertion of Arnaud, who has been kindness itself to her. We pity instead of censuring her. (Alfred A. Kopf.)

BARBUSSE'S "LIGHT."

IT never will be known to what extent Henri Barbusse's "Under Fire," one of the most hideous pictures of war ever drawn, contributed to the lowering morale of the French army which the advance couriers of the American forces reported in the latter part of 1917 and the early months of 1918, but no one would fail to put a very considerable estimate upon it. We will assume that that was not the purpose of it but merely an incident and that the author was merely faithful to his sense of realism in writing a story of the war. But the undoubted fact is that "Under Fire" was used everywhere in the entente countries as pacifist and anti-war propaganda. But, in considering "Light," Barbusse's latest story, there can be no doubt that the author has intended to freight it with his own political views and the latter part of it is devoted to a preachment of the poisonous doctrine of internationalism and the advocacy of a universal republic.

The first third of the book is the story of the love affairs of Simon Paulin, the hero, told in the first person. These are shockingly frank, life with Simon being just one licentious episode after another. The most astounding thing about Simon Paulin is that he is represented as the average Frenchman and his experiences as likely to be those every average Frenchman encounters. Simon's descriptions of his illicit love adventures is done with sinister cleverness and in shameless detail. Then comes the war and Simon's experiences in the trenches occupy many pages. This is done in the same vein that readers of "Under Fire" found so harrowing. After he is wounded, the story is metamorphised into a socialistic and international preachment. The abolition of fatherlands, motherlands, the priesthood and the establishment of a universal society are boldly urged. Simon Paulin would hardly seem to be the person to bring forward as the avatar of such a doctrine, but the author seems quite satisfied to make him his mouthpiece. The translator is Fitzwater Wray. (E. P. Dutton.)

NEW EDITION OF DECAMERON.

THE 100 stories of the Decameron of Giovanni Boccacio have been issued in an attractive volume, excellently printed on India paper. The Decameron is one of the best known of all the classics and some of the greatest writers in the English language, notably Shakespeare and Chaucer have gone to it for plot suggestions. It is said Boccacio, in turn, gathered his plot ideas from folk stories and fictions current in Italy and France. It is not to be wondered at that fables and tales of a licentious age should in turn be contaminated to some extent by licentiousness but the Decameron fully justifies itself by presenting some of the finest examples of poetical fancy and imaginative creativeness to be found in literature. It will be recalled that, during the plague in Florence in 1348—a period to which Boccacio was contemporary—seven ladies and three gentlemen betook themselves to a country villa to secure immunity to contamination from the dread disease. To pass the time, they agreed that for 10 days each of them should tell a story daily. The 100 stories are all here. Among the ladies gathered there was Fiametta, the name under which he celebrated to the world the object of his love and whom he has made so famous in literature as Dante's Beatrice and Petrarch's Laura. NEW PICKFORD PLAY TO BE SEEN HERE

Pauline Frederick Also to Star at Five Local Film Houses.

"Heart o' the Hills," starring Mary Pickford, will open an indefinite engagement tomorrow at the New Grand Central. The picture came to St. Louis direct from Miss Pickford's own studio and its local release is simultaneous with that of New York and San Francisco. It is a First National production.

John Fox Jr., noted writer of tales of the mountain folk, is the author of "Heart o' the Hills." The scenes are laid in the hills of Tennessee and the story deals with little Mavis Hawn, a loyal clansman, who promises her dying "pap" that she will "get" the man who shot him. Hawn was a victim of a feudist's bullet.

Mavis is cheated out of her mountain heritage by a band of land grabbers. She calls the night riders and whirls through the hills at the head of the long line of horsemen who are garbed in the robe of the Klu Klux Klan. In a fight that follows the leader of the land grabbers is slain. Mavis is tried for murder—and freed when every member of the jury asserts he fired the fatal shot.

Pauline Frederick will be seen in her latest Goldwyn production entitled "The Loves of Letty," starting tomorrow at the King's Theater for four days, and at the Shenandoah. Juniata and Grand-Florissant for three days. A two-day engagement will start at the Lindell Theater Monday night. "The Loves of Letty" was written by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero. It deals with Letty Shell (Pauline Frederick), who is a working girl and in love with an aristocratic London clubman. Her one hope is to marry him, and she makes an effort to bring herself to the social level of his standing.

"Eastward Ho!" with William Russell in the leading role, will top the bill at the Liberty Theater, beginning tomorrow. Lucille Lee Stewart is the supporting actress.

The story is said to be an unusual one, showing the consequences of frauds in which cattle owners in the West are duped into signing crooked contracts. Russell has the part of the leader of the cattle owners organization who is appointed by them to go to New York and recover the contracts. This he does in true Western style and he shows the New York gangsters a brand of gunplay which they have never seen. Of course, he recovers the papers and wins the girl. On the bill also will be a Sunshine comedy, a Mutt and Jeff Cartoon comedy and a Fox News Weekly.

On the Sunday matineer program also will be Alice Joyce in "The Winchester Woman." This will be an added feature beginning Monday night, but will not be shown Sunday night.

The leading attraction at the Pershing will be the First National attraction, "Someone Must Pay," which is completing a successful week at the New Grand Central.

Flashes From Filmland

Bessie Love holds the altitude record among lady high-flyers west of the Mississippi. Miss Love with her driver ascended in an airplane from the De Mille field near Hollywood to a height of 11,500 feet.

Antonio Moreno is another flighty one at the De Mille aviation field. He has made several flights and says that by the first of the year he may fly over to Spain and visit his mother.

David Butler is doing his fourth picture with Mary Maclaren, the working title of which is "No Experience Required."

Elinor Fair is working hard at her French lessons because she has had a hint that she and Al Ray will go to France to make one or two films. This would be a change but not a novelty to Elinor who studied music in both France and England.

Winifred Kingston will return to the screen in "The Light of Western Stars" with Dustin Farnum. Miss Kingston has contracted to make at least four pictures a year with Mr. Farnum.

"Old Lady 31," the whimsical story of plain folk beloved by all theatergoers, will be picturized under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger, director-general of screen classics.

Florence Turner, universally known as "The Vitagraph Girl," and the first recognized motion picture star, is now at Universal City, directing and acting in one-reel comedies.

Madame Rose Dione, who plays the heavy in Geraldine Farrar's picture "The World and the Woman," is a former Parisian stage star who was forced to come to America on account of the war.

Sam Polo, brother of Eddie, will make his bow under the Vitagraph banner as a daredevil player in Antonio Moreno's new serial.

Wesley Barry, the freckled youngster who helped Mary Pickford upset the orphan asylum in "Daddy Long Legs," and did many impossible and inappropriate but in themselves amusing things in "The Unpardonable Sin," is to impersonate Penrod under the direction of Marshall Nielan, who puts Booth Tarkington boys into almost everything he does. Nielan has acquired the screen rights to all of Tarkington's Penrod stories.

Sydney Chaplin has come back from Europe and announces that he will begin work at once on the comedies which he will make in his brother Charlie's studio for the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. He is reported to have brought to this country 30,000 feet of film made abroad for use in his comedies.

Eugene Walter has gone to the Goldwyn studios in California, it is reported, to participate in the production of pictures. To exactly what work Mr. Walter will turn his playwriting talent is not known—not even to Walter, it is said—but he expects to find plenty to do.

Monte Blue has put his name to a five-year agreement with the Famous Players-Lasky.

Webster Campbell, from service overseas and formerly juvenile lead in Vitagraph productions, will play opposite Gypsy O'Brien in a series of O. Henry pictures.

ILLINOIS BANKER MISSING; $400,000 SHORTAGE ALLEGED

Crete Cashier Locks State Examiners in Building and Drives Away in His Automobile.

"VAULT DOOR AND JANITOR ARE LEFT"

President of Institution Suffers Heart Attack When Informed of Other's Disappearance.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The Illinois State Bank of Crete, Ill., today declined to open and it was announced a warrant charging embezzlement had been issued for the missing cashier, Gust Kracke, in connection with an alleged shortage of $400,000.

The bank was capitalized at $25,000 and had known assets of approximately $300,000.

"The vault door and the janitor are left—that's about all," said a State bank examiner after the books, including a duplicate set in a vault, to which none but Kracke was said to have access, had been gone over.

Speculation was blamed for Kracke's alleged peculation.

When the bank examiners went to Crete to examine the institution, Kracke, according to the examiners, received them and turned over his books and keys and unlocked the vault.

"I'm going across the street a minute—just make yourselves at home," he told them.

Locked in Building.

An hour later the examiners found they were locked in the building and that Kracke had driven away in his automobile. He has not been heard from since, so far as is known.

Crete is a German-American settlement of approximately 4000 persons. There Kracke was postmaster, police magistrate, notary public, life and fire insurance agent and described as a pillar of his church. He is 37 years old, married and has a 7-year-old son.

During the first Liberty Loan, when quotas for various counties were assigned, George Woodruff, president of the First National Bank of Joliet, and a county chairman, wrote Kracke urging stimulation of subscriptions. Kracke's reply was said to have been to the effect that "his people didn't see any sense to all this war foolishness and did not want to buy bonds."

Later Kracke was reprimanded for "un-American conduct" in his treatment of the soldiers arrested at Crete.

Henry Meier, president of the bank, suffered a heart attack after he was told of the cashier's disappearance and today is said to be in a serious condition.

William Saller, chairman of the board, said that, while a warrant had been sworn out for Kracke's arrest, it is desired "to give him every chance to return and face the charges."

"Our bank has about 500 depositors and $200,000 in deposits," he added.

ROBBERS BIND AND GAG WOMAN

Mrs. Lena Snell, 24 years old, of 3717½ Garfield avenue, told policemen at 6 p. m. yesterday that at 1:30 o'clock she had been held up, gagged and tied to a bed with towels in her home by two men who walked into the kitchen while she was at work and demanded money.

"What money?" she asked.

"The money you got on your husband's check," they replied.

When she told them it was not in the house, she said, they tied and gagged her and searched the rooms, taking 70 cents and her wedding ring. She was found at 3:45 p. m. by a stepson, Maurice Snell, 10 years old, when he returned from school. He untied the towels and she called policemen.

1000 DELEGATES TO NEW PARTY CONVENTION OPENS IN CHICAGO

Labor Leaders, Farmers and Nonpartisan League Members Expect to Name Candidate for President.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Nearly 1000 delegates, including labor leaders, co-operative association sponsors and representatives of farmers' organizations and the nonpartisan league, are here today to attend a convention of the national party called primarily to nominate a candidate for President of the United States. Many of the new party men went sleepy-eyed to the meeting hall this morning after all night conferences caused, they said, by a conflict between radical and conservative leaders in the American Federation of Labor, with possible injection into the controversy of a third element.

The convention was called recently by John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor and Chairman of the National Steel Strike Committee, and his associates in the middle west. The two major parties would be attacked, Fitzpatrick said, with the intention of rendering them impotent. The Democratic party first would be assailed, he said, "because of its attitude toward union labor," and an assault on the Republican organization would follow.

Among resolutions delegates said would be presented to the convention were those advocating "free speech and the right of free assembly." "Removal of the allied blockade of the Soviet Government of Russia," and an endorsement of the Bolshevik Government.

WOMEN PREACHERS WANT EQUAL RIGHTS WITH MEN

President of Newly-Organized Association Says Equality Would Encourage Sex to Take to Pulpit.

The International Woman Preachers' Association was organized at the Y. W. C. A. Building yesterday to obtain the same ecclesiastical privileges for women ministers as those which men in the same profession have.

Miss Madeline Southard of Winfield, Kan., who was elected president, said equality of privileges would bring many more women preachers into the field.

The 1910 census, she said, showed there were 685 women preachers in the United States. Since then the number has increased, and all women now in the ministry will be asked to join the new association.

REED'S TREATY STAND ATTACKED

County Democrats Say Senator Has Humiliated Party in Missouri.

St. Louis County Democrats, at a meeting last night in Ferguson, adopted resolutions denouncing Senator Reed for his opposition to the treaty of peace and for his part in preventing the ratification of the treaty. Confidence in President Wilson was expressed in the resolutions.

Reed was charged with having humiliated the Democrats of Missouri and with having failed to act in accordance with the wishes of his constituents. Among the speakers at the meeting were John M. Atkinson, Harlan E. Read, Thomas D. Cannon, Mrs. F. H. Littlefield and Mrs. William H. Allen.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE NOT PANACEA

Missouri U. Professor Says, However, Sex Will Be Broadened.

W. L. Shepard, professor in political science at Missouri University, who addressed the Town Club last night on suffrage said that the enfranchisement for women cannot be expected to prove a panacea for all troubles, but that one good effect would be to broaden women and put them in a plane superior to that they now occupy.

He declared that there is very little difference in the woman vote and the male vote and that there is the criminal element among women that may be voted by the machine as readily as the male.

BILL ASKS FOR $1700 BACK SALARY FOR CITY MARSHAL

Measure Says City Legal Department Kept Increase From Him for Twenty-one Months.

City Marshal Mohrstadt, on the ground that the city Legal Department barred him for 21 months from collecting his full salary, yesterday caused a bill to be introduced in the Board of Aldermen providing for the payment to him of $1700 back salary.

He was elected in 1913, when the salary was $4000 a year, and the adoption of the new city charter in 1914, with its provision for $3000 a year, did not change his status until his term expired, which was in August, 1916. Mayor Kiel promptly reappointed him at the salary of $3000 a year, and the Board of Aldermen later passed a bill making the salary $4000 a year. This bill became effective in May, 1917.

The Legal Department informed Mohrstadt, however, that the bill was not valid, and that he could not collect more than $3000, under the charter, and he didn't. Several months ago, however, the Board of Aldermen increased the Police Judges' salary from $3000 to $4000, and the Legal Department said it was proper. Then the city started paying Mohrstadt $4000. He wants the difference between $3000 a year and $4000 for the period between May, 1917, and March 1, last, when he started getting the increased salary.

Can of Turpentine Catches Fire From Causes Not Ascertained.

Meyer Heligman, 25 years old, 3023 Dickson street, a painter, was seriously burned, and Isaac Deutch, 44, of 2803 Gamble street, and Meyer Berg, 3841 Finney avenue, were slightly burned on the hands at 5 p. m. yesterday when a can of turpentine and varnish exploded in a room on the second floor of 9 Benton place. The subsequent fire damaged the building $1500.

Deutch owns the place and Heligman was preparing to move in. Berg and Deutch were assisting him in painting the floors when the can caught fire from causes not ascertained. The burning oil was thrown on Heligman's clothes as he knelt on the floor. Deutch and Berg were burned extinguishing the blaze.

THREW BOMBS TO THE ENEMY

Chinese Meant to Kill Germans, but They Failed to Draw Pins.

VICTORIA, British Columbia, Nov. 22.—Company 34 of the Chinese Labor Corps, which passed through Victoria several years ago 900 strong, on its way to the Western front, is here again on its way home, only 42 strong.

The company, it was said, suffered several casualties when it was seeking revenge for German aerial bombings. It is said the Chinese attacked a German prison camp with Mills bombs which they threw without drawing the pins. The German prisoners picked up the unexploded bombs, drew the pins and tossed them back among the Orientals, where they exploded with effect.

Boston Wagering Favors Harvard At 10 to 8 Odds

Prevailing Belief, However, Is That Yale Is About an Even Match for Crimson.

OVER 50,000 WILL ATTEND

Cambridge Stadium Inadequate to Accommodate All Enthusiasts Desiring Tickets.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 22.—Harvard and Yale approached the annual settlement of their football claims today with the players primed to make their utmost effort. Both teams were reported "fit" by trainers and coaches and the enthusiasts among their adherents ran riot.

Approximately 50,000 football-mad spectators streamed out to the Harvard stadium to watch the teams in their first contest since 1916. Thousands of others, disappointed because of their inability to procure tickets, awaited the outcome on the streets or in gathering places where bulletins were posted. Boston newspapers, under orders in effect since the State guard has been on police duty there, were not permitted to display bulletins of the game, but arranged to publish many extra editions.

Although experts declared that analysis of previous efforts could show no reason for giving Harvard odds, the Crimson entered the game a 10 to 8 favorite. The results against Princeton showed Harvard the stronger; but Yale's admirers believed the Blue was due for a big come back. Squad statistics showed the Harvard men taller than their opponents, but one pound lighter in the average weight.

Field Not in Best Condition.

The heavy blanket of straw placed over the field Wednesday was not sufficient to make the playing surface perfect. Uncertain footing handicapped neither team to any particular extent, however, according to the records of the backfield runners.

Weather conditions appeared to favor the spectators as the day opened fair and mild.

Players on the teams remained at their resting quarters until after noon. The Yale contingent played numerous "head" games at the Belmont Springs Country Club, while the Harvard squad listened to the final warnings and advice of its coaches at the even more secluded Essex Country Club.

Both elevens were confident of winning. All appeared to believe that the final result would be governed largely by individual prowess and "breaks."

THREE YALE REGULARS IN DOUBTFUL CONDITION

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—The Yale football squad had a busy time at the Stadium and at the Belmont Springs Country Club, yesterday, and last night looked forward to the Harvard game with confidence.

All the Yale men are in good condition except Fred Webb, Thorne Murphy and Jim Braden. Webb's injury consists of two broken ribs from the Brown game, but he may get in the game, today. Thorne Murphy's injury is to his foot. He ran through signals with the second team, but limped so badly after a few minutes that it was apparent that the most he can do today is to go in for a drop kick.

Jim Braden is badly bruised, and his nose is so injured that he has to breathe through his mouth. He has not been in a scrimmage this week, and yesterday for the first time was in the signal drill. Dr. Townshend fixed him up yesterday afternoon and will again today, just before the game, so that he will start and possibly play through.

If he goes out, Webb will take his place, and later Don Welles. If Murphy goes in it will be as a substitute for Bob Lay. The substitute quarterback will be Chet La Roche, with a possibility that "Chick" Neville, brother of Joe Neville, may get in to earn his letter.

Al Sharpe announced last night that "Babe" Allen would start the game at right end, with Barclay Robinson as first substitute. He has had much more experience than Robinson. Allen will start as the veteran of the team. He is the only member of the eleven who ever played Harvard at Cambridge. He played on Alex Wilson's eleven four years ago in the game here when Yale was defeated, 41 to 0.

DRURY PASS NETS TIE IN GAME WITH JEWELL

LIBERTY, Mo., Nov. 22.—Before the largest crowd that a Jewell gridiron has seen since the championship game with Warrensburg, six years ago, Drury and William Jewell today battled to a 7-to-7 tie.

The scoring came entirely in the first quarter. The Cardinals made their only touchdown after eight minutes of play, carrying the ball from the middle of the field to the Drury goal line by six consecutive first downs.

Soon after that Drury got away for a long end run, which netted them 25 yards. Then something happened. Just as the Drury runner was being downed the ball was passed by the runner to Washburn, a Drury guard, who raced on over the line unopposed for the Panthers' only score. At no other time did Drury make a serious bid for a score, except in the first quarter when they tried a drop kick which went wide of the posts. On three occasions Jewell was within striking distance, but lacked the punch. Drury was able to hold in the pinches.

RODGERS, captain and fullback of the West Virginia eleven, has scored 15 touchdowns.

Harvard Backfield or Yale Line--Which Will Conquer?

Foreview of Today's Game at Cambridge Indicates That Rival Elevens Depend on Entirely Different Factors for Results—Many Title Contests Scheduled.

By John E. Wray.

THIS dippy football season will whirl into its penultimate chapter today, when many elevens of national standing will conclude their surprising seasons. Thanksgiving day will see the curtain rung down on nearly all schedules.

Of the many interesting and doubtful contests set for decision this afternoon none will surpass the Harvard-Yale classic which this year is being played at the Cambridge stadium.

Harvard is very naturally the favorite for the contest, which means little save that there's a large possibility of another popular choice being bowled over.

All Eastern reports indicate that Harvard's eleven is at the crest of its power and that it is an ably coached team with plenty of mental alertness. It showed to better advantage against Princeton, and has a better record than Yale. Its attack is not limited to the "old army" stuff and, if balked in its regular method of assault, it has Horween to drop kick and several forward passing combinations to fall back upon.

Yale Line Formidable.

Yale is credited with the most powerful line of the Big Three. It owns a terrific plunger in Braden. It has a drop kicker of excellent quality in Thorne Murphy, who, unfortunately, is not sufficiently recovered to play more than in an emergency effort. It has considerable old-fashioned football power; but expert criticism in the East is agreed that it has not shown the versatility of attack displayed by the Crimson.

As between teams close in strength, opinion is little more than sentimental in value. Accidents of play may throw the verdict either way.

Three Sectional Games Scheduled.

Three intersectional contests figure in today's battling, Syracuse vs. Indiana, Rutgers vs. Northwestern, and Detroit vs. Buffalo.

There is not much of a "line," through comparative scores on the Syracuse-Stiehm Roller class. The first-named team, one of the strongest combinations in the East, figures to be a few points better than Notre Dame, on a line through the army game. As Notre Dame shut out Indiana, 9—0, the Syracusans naturally will the the popular choices. The dope indicates that Indiana may make a good fight, especially as they play on their home grounds while the Easterners are en junket. The game means nothing to them more than a nice trip West. Syracuse meets Nebraska Thanksgiving day.

The Rutgers-Northwestern team is something of an unknown quantity, but it is probable that the battle will be closer than the Syracuse-Indiana affair. Rutgers is not up to its usual strength, having lost its black "ace," Robeson.

Northwestern figures about even with Rutgers. Like any game between evenly matched elevens, the issue here will be doubtful. The game is being played on neutral grounds in Newark, N. J.

It's Easy for Detroit.

The Detroit eleven figures to romp over the Buffaloians, who have a very feeble record. Detroit smashed the strong Georgetown University men, who subsequently defeated the Naval Academy eleven of high renown. The Buffalo team thus far has not achieved a single victory, having suffered four defeats by minor elevens and tied opponents in two other instances. None of the opposing elevens appears to have had any class higher than third rate.

The big game of the West, of course, is the Illinois-Ohio State, which promises to be a battle between Chick Harley and a strong line on the part of the Buckeyes, and an eleven that has few stars but a splendid team combination.

Stinchcomb, Williamon and Harley constitute the backbone of the Ohio State team and Ohio's efforts will unquestionably be devoted to taking care of this triumvirate of notable former service stars.

Illinois Much Improved.

Illinois has the call, however, in that it has not yet reached the zenith of its power, while the Ohioans appear to have passed their highest point. The one blot against Illinois was the Wisconsin game. At that time the Illinois eleven had not been shaken up into its present form and the present eleven has shown in several instances that it is the most formidable scoring machine in the Big Ten. Its crushing defeat of Michigan, 29—7, surpasses by 12 points or two touchdowns the showing made by Ohio State against the Wolverines.

This battle is strictly for the conference championshi, and Ohio State will be title holder without question, if it beats the Illini. If Illinois wins, it will be generally conceded to be the strongest eleven in the conference, although its title claims will be impaired by losing to the Badgers.

Bearcats of the "Bushes."

Many interesting contests are on the schedule, notably that between Lehigh and Lafayette. These two minor elevens are very strong this season. It is difficult to separate these South Bethlehem rivals, and it will be one of the hardest fights of the day as the feeling between the two schools is of the cat-and-dog order.

How Strong Is Ames?

How good the new Ames eleven may be will be demonstrated when Ames and Iowa University come together. Ames was not considered among the leaders of the Valley conference, early in the season. It succumbed to Missouri, 10—0. But in its recent contests it came to life with a wallop. First it defeated Nebraska, 3—0, and then it smashed the Kansas Aggies, 46—0, a terrific beating for so good an eleven.

Iowa, on its 18—0 defeat of Nebraska and its later conquest of Minnesota, shows unquestioned ability and appears too strong for the Ames men. If the latter should hold the Hawkeyes to a close score or tie, it would indicate that Missouri, although nominal leader of the Valley conference, has not the strongest eleven.

YALE SLIGHT CHOICE AMONG FOOTBALL STARS

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Sentiment of football players is slightly in favor of Yale beating Harvard in their football struggle at Cambridge today, according to the opinion of a number of players of the Princeton and Boston College elevens, who took the field against both teams, and of a number of coaches well qualified to speak.

Of those who responded to a request for an expression of their views on this football question, seven favor Yale, five favor Harvard, four call it a toss-up, while 10 or 12 think the teams are too well-matched to even guess, much less predict.

Those who did predict agreed practically to a man that there is little or nothing to choose on what has been seen this year, so that "buts" and "ifs" crept in, with most of the "ifs" being Casey, and as to whether or not Yale can stop this strong, elusive runner.

The Yale boosters base their opinion largely on the strength of the Blue line:

Gibbons, Beaten By O'Dowd, Says He Will Retire

St. Paul Phantom Announces He Has Promised Wife Never to Box Again.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 22.—Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul phantom, today announced through the Associated Press that he has decided to retire permanently from the ring. Gibbons, who is considered quite wealthy, and who has a family, said he today gave his promise to Mrs. Gibbons that he will never again participate in a ring battle.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 22.—Mike won by a shade, and his last name is O'Dowd. Mike Gibbons battled valiantly, at the Auditorium, last night, against the middleweight title-holder, who happened to be a fellow-townsman, and displayed much of his old-time phantom boxing, making O'Dowd miss frequently.

In the sixth round he brought his right over against O'Dowd's cheek bone, and while he shook up the champion, he injured his principal fighting asset so severely that involuntarily he dropped it and winced as though suffering agony. It was reported that he had broken a bone of the right hand.

Thereafter he used his right hand sparingly, but in the ninth round landed a wicked chop with it flush on O'Dowd's jaw that sent the hard reeling backward for two or three steps.

That was the last flash of that famous right. In the tenth it was throbbing so painfully that he used it only for blocking purposes.

Bout Was Really "Meant."

From the tap o fthe gong in the first round it was apparent that both were out for blood, but neither boxed wildly. They fought savagely but carefully, and neither, during the entire 10 rounds, gave his opponent an opening for a knockout blow.

The crowd was the greatest "money assemblage" that has ever been packed into the auditorium, it being estimated that the receipts were in excess of $40,000. Of this amount Gibbons received 80 per cent, out of which he will pay O'Dowd $15,000. Gibbons also had the motion picture concession an dagreed that O'Dowd receive 25 per cent of the film receipts.

It was stated that both fighters entered the ring at 158 pounds. O'Dowd appeared in better condition when the fight was over and the crowd extended to him the warmer reception.

A majority of ringside newspaper critics gave the verdict to O'Dowd.

Curley Ulrich of St. Paul was introduced as official referee, while George Barton of Minneapolis and Ed L. Shave of St. Paul, sporting writers, were selected as judges. The last two named O'Dowd as the winner.

Packey McFarland was the only ring notable introduced besides the principals and responded with a few remarks when a cry for a speech went up from the fans.

Webster Eleven Beats Kirkwood High Team 7 to 0

Scoring a touchdown with less than one minute to play, in the first half of their game at Francis Field, yesterday afternoon, Coach Roberts' Webster Groves High School football team defeated Kirkwood High 7 to 0. The victory virtually clinches the county championship for Webster.

Although Webster appeared to have the advantage of Kirkwood at all angles of play throughout the contest, fumbles, which were frequent on both sides, resulted unfortunately many times for Roberts' players, preventing a score until near the close of the first period.

Here Percy Phillips broke through the Kirkwood line and ran 40 yards through the enemy team for a touch down, from which goal was kicked. Only one play followed before the whistle sounding the close of the half sounded.

The lineup:

WEBSTER (7).	Pos.	KIRKWOOD (0).
Senne	Left end	Hawkins
Elam	Left tackle	Payne
Elersele	Left guard	Runge
Cantwell	Center	Burshick
McMath	Right guard	Venard

Vaughn	Quarterback	White
Phillips	Left halfback	Signor
Thornton	Right halfback	Gresehan
Baldwin	Fullback	J. Martin

Score by periods:

Webster	0	7	0	0—7
Kirkwood	0	0	0	0—0

Scoring, Webster—Touchdown—Phillips I. Goals after touchdown—Cantwell 1. Substitutions—Webster—Avis for Elam; Kirkwood—Mack for White. Officials—Sihler (Washington U.), referee; Walker (Knox), umpire; E. Klein (Missouri), head linesman. Time of quarters—15 minutes.

BILLIKENS WORK HARD AGAINST FRESHMEN TO PERFECT SCORING PUNCH

Coach Rademacher's squad had one of the most satisfactory workouts of the season, yesterday, when his regulars were opposed to the Freshmen in scrimmage practice.

Another hard session is scheduled today and it will probably be the last severe scrimmage practice of the year. Rademacher fears an accident to one of his stars that would seriously handicap him for the game of next Thursday against Washington.

Anatomically Speaking.

I'll beat on the drum of my ear;
The big horn of plenty I'll thumb,
So the band on my hat I will hear.

Both Berger and Potthoff to Play In Billiken Game

Pikeway Stars Recovering From Illness and Injuries and Resume Practice.

Today will be the first day of total rest that the Washington University football squad has had, aside from Sundays, since the Pikeway gridiron players were assembled in late September. Before his departure for Bloomington, Ind., last night, Coach Rutherford ordered that the players forget football until Monday, when the team will start its final preparations for the St. Louis U. contest.

Rutherford desires to preclude any chances of letting his charges get stale before the Billikens are met.

Rutherford and Gordon Beck, his assistant, left last night for the home of the Hoosier eleven, where Stiehm's team will entertain the strong Syracuse team today. The Washington leader stated that he was attending the game in order to pick up a few stunts and tactics which might be serviceable against St. Louis U.

Potthoff and Berger Ready.

The Potthoff illness bubble was pricked yesterday when Fred reported in uniform and engaged in the scrimmage on Francis Field. Potthoff was paired off in the signal drill with George Berger, who is now practically assured of playing. The stocky halfback said that he had been feeling badly on Thursday, but a day's rest put him back in shape.

Kremer and Burke at Ends.

The ends were once again held down by Kremer and Burke, so that now it appears as if this pair would start Thursday's game on the terminals. A backfield composed of Grant, George Thompson and Hausladen, opposed the varsity eleven and was unable to gain at all against it. They were especially instructed to work around the ends, but were unable to make any consistent headway.

Burke Improves on Defense.

The fact that Burke is showing an improvement in his defensive work is most gratifying to Rutherford. The East St. Louis youth had done good work at catching passes since he was placed on a wing, but the coaches were afraid of his tackling. Yesterday he proved that he is fit for the job on the defense.

The seat sale has been started and Artie Eilers, in charge of the Washington sale, announces that the Pikeway followers are beginning now to fill the Red and Green sections. A large number of the Washington boxes are already gone.

Illinois Expects To Give Buckeye Team Hard Fight

Even Money Wagering Shows Both Teams' Supporters Are Fairly Confident.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 22.—Ohio State and University of Illinois elevens met today in their struggle to decide the championship of the Western Conference for 1919.

The weather before the game was warm and a fine rail fell. The field was soggy from a heavy rain last night.

The greatest crowd in the history of Ohio football was assured for the game 10 days ago. Late comers who have besieged athletic heads for tickets were given their last chance to obtain admission early today when standing room tickets for 1000 additional spectators were placed on sale. Upwards of 15,000 persons will view the clash.

Six hundred Illinois supporters arrived on a special train early today. Wagering on the game was moderate and no odds were demanded of either side.

The Western conference cross-country championship was scheduled for shortly before noon over the Ohio State five-mile course. Fourteen teams were entered.

The probable lineup:

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Insist on Genuine Ford Parts

Imitation "Ford" parts are being sold by many mail order houses, downtown stores and garages to unsuspecting Ford owners as "Ford" parts. But they are not Genuine Ford parts, made by the Ford Motor Company. They are made by concerns who have no connection whatsoever with the Ford Motor Company. These imitation parts are not even made from the same grade of steel or under the same formulas used by the Ford Company. They are counterfeit parts. Tests have shown them to break when the genuine Ford parts didn't even bend, and they are from thirty-five to one hundred per cent lower in quality.

The Authorized Ford Dealers are your protection. As such we handle nothing but the Genuine Ford parts. They are made from the famous Ford Vanadium Steel and each part—according to its use—is heat-treated in the way that will give it the longest wearing qualities. Every part is the same as its duplicate in your Ford car or Ford truck.

Our stock of parts is complete. And our Ford garages and Ford mechanics are at your service at all times. Drive in to any of the following when replacements or repairs for your Ford car may be necessary. Save your car and also your money.

MINING CONGRESS FAVORS SURVEY OF LABOR CONDITIONS

Convention Adopts Resolution Before Adjournment Designed to Prevent Strikes and Walkouts Before Inquiry.

EXCISE TAX ON GOLD PROPOSED

Delegates Say It Is Needed as Coins Are Being Converted Into Jewelry—Anti-Radical Campaign Advocated.

The national convention of the American Mining Congress, in the old Southern Hotel building, adjourned yesterday afternoon, following adoption of resolutions providing for a nation-wide survey of industrial conditions and legislation against strikes or lockouts without investigation of industrial disputes by a public commission; advocating an excise tax on gold for jewelry; protesting against lack of governmental protection of Americans in Mexico, and advocating greater activity against radical enemies of the Government.

The resolution demanding that the State Department employ greater protective measures for Americans in Mexico brought Edmundo Martinez, St. Louis Mexican Consul of the Carranza Government, to his feet to protest that "the Government of Carranza is loyal and clean, and needs our sympathy and help instead of criticism."

Property Loss Cited.

The resolution sated that many mining engineers, operators and miners and other American citizens had suffered great property loss under the Carranza regime, and in some instances death.

The resolution recommending the industrial survey provides for a unified plan fair to employer and employe, to be submitted to a referendum vote of the employers. Other commercial and business organizations throughout the country will be invited to participate in the movement for a better general understanding between capital and labor.

The resolution against radicals advocated the revival of the organization of four-minute speakers to expound the ideals of this Government as a means to counteract dangerous propaganda, and recommended imprisonment or deportation of enemies of law and order.

Jewelry Made From Coins.

The gold resolution stated a large number of gold coins were being utilized in the manufacture of jewelry, on account of the lessened production of gold, and advocated legislation prohibiting the use of coins for this purpose. To stimulate gold production for jewelry manufacture, an excise tax on gold for this purpose was recommended, out of which a bonus of $10 an ounce may be paid to producers.

Resolutions of thanks to St. Louis for its reception, hospitality and courtesy to the delegates were unanimously adopted. Bulkeley Wells of Denver, president of the Congress, said the attitude of St. Louis towards the delegates was praiseworthy beyond words.

The Oil Shales Division of the Congress, which was organized during this convention, elected Dr. Victor C. Alderson, president of the Colorado School of Mines, chairman of the division for the cming year.

A request by the Department of Public Utilities for an appropriation of $34,000 for the erection of car sheds and other accessories to the proposed municipal car line across the Free Bridge, yesterday was refused by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. Mayor Kiel said the United Railways lets many of its cars stand out in the open, and the city could do the same.

EMBARGOES ON WHEAT FLOUR AND WHEAT TO END DEC. 15

Lifting Follows Action of President in Proclamation Completely Terminating Control.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Embargoes on wheat and flour will be lifted Dec. 15, it is announced by the United States Grain Corporation.

Lifting of embargoes on both exports and imports followed the action of President Wilson in Washington in signing a proclamation completely terminating the embargo control which has been in effect for more than two years.

Control over embargoes first was exercised by the war trade board to protect the supplies of wheat and wheat flour for the allies. Later control was taken over by Julius H. Barnes, wheat director, under the wheat guarantee bill.

"This release of embargo permits Canadian wheat and wheat flour to enter American markets free of duty, under rulings of the custom service. It is expected that this will greatly enlarge the United States supply of spring wheat flours which are favorites in the baking trade and which, because of the part crop failure in the Northwest this year, have been relatively in light supply."

BUTCHER CONVICTED AGAIN OF RECEIVING STOLEN AUTOS

Penalty Fixed at Two Years' Imprisonment; Given Three-Year Term Last June.

William Ehrenberg, proprietor of a butcher shop at 2118 Cherokee street, was convicted a second time today on a charge of receiving stolen property. The penalty was fixed at two years in the penitentiary. On a conviction on a similar charge June 7 last his punishment was fixed at three years imprisonment.

In the trial which ended today he was accused of receiving an automobile stolen from Joseph Nochta, of 906 Vandeventer avenue in September, 1918. His previous conviction was for receiving a car stolen from Louis Lange, of 2633 North Vandeventer avenue.

The principal witness for the State is both cases was Albert Bishslich, 21 years old, of 3412 South Broadway, who testified that he and Frank Kolasa, of 1020 Sidney street, stole cars for Ehrenberg and altered and repainted them in Ehrenberg's garage.

CHARGES AGAINST GROCER IN EAST ST. LOUIS DISMISSED

Relatives Pay Indebtedness of Merchant Who Operated Endless Chain Plan.

The charge of conducting a confidence game, filed against J. W. Callicotte, 65 years old, proprietor of the Martin Self-Help Grocery Co., 427 St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis, when he was arrested last Saturday because of his endless chain plan, was dismissed today by Assistant State's Attorney Freels.

Callicotte operated the endless chain plan about 10 days. Customers, upon paying $2, would be given 10 certificates to distribute among friends, each of whom would call at the store, deposit $2 and receive 10 certificates for distribution. The person making a deposit of $2 was entitled to receive $6 worth of groceries when four of the certificate holders would make a deposit of $2 each.

Callicotte said he spent three months working out the scheme, and no amount of argument or figuring could convince him that he was simply giving $6 worth of goods for $2, and that he would not be able to meet his obligations when "depositors" ceased and they demanded the amount of goods promised them.

Attorney Freels said the proposition assumed the attitude of a gambling game, and the depositors who lost the $2 they gave Callicotte were simply taking a chance and were parties to the gambling game.

Relatives of Callicotte, living in Kansas, were in East St. Louis the past week and paid indebtedness which he had incurred with wholesale firms. They said they believed he had studied the endless chain plan until he believed it would prove a success, and that he had expended every cent received in purchasing goods to fulfill the promises made to patrons.

WORK SUSPENDED BY 2 MEN EMPLOYED ON POLICE JOURNAL

One of the smallest industrial upheavals on record occurred at 10:30 a. m., today when Henry Goetz man of the Police Department printing shop, voted unanimously to suspend work until the Police Board should meet and grant their demands for the union wage scale.

Charles H. Hertenstein, president of the city's Efficiency Board and also president of Typographical Union, No. 8, sanctioned their action.

Goetz and Morey get out the weekly Police Journal and daily Police Bulletin. Goetz receives $132 a month, which is $34 less than the union scale, and Morey receives $104, $23 less than the scale.

Hertenstein has repeatedly appeared before the Police Board and demanded the union scale for these printers, but the grant has been delayed from time to time owing to the inability of the board to assemble a quorum.

Out of courtesy to the board, Goetz and Morey ran off a few copies of the journals before suspending work.

Life Sentence for Negro Slayer.

By the Associated Press.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Nov. 22.—"Buck" Wilson, negro, who shot and killed Inez Hobson of Beloit, Wis., here last June, was sentenced to life imprisonment by Judge R. K. Walsh, in Circuit Court today. Wilson pleaded guilty.

BILL INTRODUCED TO LICENSE SCALPING OF TICKETS HERE

Measure Before Aldermen Would Require $25 Fee Yearly and Would Limit Profit to 50 Cents.

A bill to license and control ticket scalpers, and to repeal an ordinance which forbids ticket scalping, was introduced in the Board of Aldermen yesterday by Alderman Scholl.

It provides that scalpers must pay a license fee of $25 a year, and that they can only add 50 cents to the regular box office price of tickets which they sell. Violation would entail a fine of $10 to $100.

Scholl said he had found that hotels evaded the present ordinance by saying they had no tickets to sell, but pretending to send a bell boy or porter after them, and charging 50 cents to $1 for "service."

STREET CARS IN COLLISION

A southbound Belt line car ran into a westbound Laclede car at Eighteenth and Market streets at 8 a. m. today and threw the Laclede car partly off its rear truck. The front of the Belt car was demolished. No one was injured.

East and westbound Market, Manchester and Laclede cars and southbound Belt, Park and Compton cars were delayed 25 minutes. Park, Compton and Belt cars going north on Eighteenth street were able to turn east at Market and continue their trips. Some cars on the other lines were re-routed.

Policemen reported that a new motorman, on his second trip by himself, was responsible, having started his Belt car after the Laclede car had the right of way.

STOCK MARKET RALLIES AFTER OPENING LOWER

Gains Are the Rule at the Week-End Session of New York Exchange.

Closing Prices on Liberty Bonds in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Liberty Bonds final prices today were: 3½s, 100.10; first 4s, 92.30; second 4s, 92.30; first 4¼s, 94.50; second 4¼s, 92.60; third 4¼s, 94.26; fourth 4¼s, 92.58; Victory 3¾s, 99.26; Victory 4¾s, 99.24.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"That forced liquidation on the Stock Exchange had run its course was shown plainly enough by today's market. Prices recovered gradually, the gain in active stocks being a point or therabouts, but transactions were not large and the week ended quietly.

"In the foreign exchange market also, the week ended uneventfully, sterling yielded fractionally, but remained nearly 4 cents above the low rate of Thursday morning. Today's rate was, however, 6½ cents below last week's closing, and nearly 13 cents under the highest of the present month. Exchange on other European markets hardly moved today.

"Decrease of $9,851,000 in surplus reserves of the New York Clearing House banks, despite $64,600,000 reduction of their loan account, showed pretty clearly that the week's work had consisted largely of cutting down rediscounts and credits at the Federal Reserve Bank. As a matter of fact, reserve credits of the private banks with that institution are shown to have been reduced $12,000,000 this week, making the total reduction of the fortnight $62,000,000. The weekly statements of the Reserve system itself will again be of unusual interest."

Stocks suffered further drastic liquidation in the first half of this week, but made measurable, and in several important cases, more than full recoveries later.

Rallies were concurrent with the passing of the money scare, call loans renewing at 8 per cent, the lowest initial quotation of the month and a slight relaxation of time money.

In responsible quarters there was every disposition to enforce the admonitions of the Federal Reserve Board against "unrestricted speculation." This found its most direct expression in the pronounced curtailment of business on the Stock Exchange.

Canvass of the banks and other lending institutions elicited the statement that brokers' loans had been further reduced. This fact, coupled with the weeding out of additional impaired speculative accounts, strengthened the market in all quarters.

Indications that the shorts had overplayed their position were furnished by the scarcity of such stocks as General Motors, Crucible Steel and several of the high grade oils, these stocks featuring the rebound.

Contrary to prophecies voiced in many circles, rejection of the peace treaty excited little more than temporary or sentimental effect, but another slump in foreign exchange and latest developments in the coal strike occasioned fresh apprehension.

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Dealings on the Stock Exchange today were light and limited almost entirely to traders. The customary week-end closing of accounts was indicated by the course of most leaders. Further covering of shorts was seen in General Motors, Pierce-Arrow, Crucible Steel and representative oils, in which gains of 2 to 8 points were scored. Standard rails and industrials recorded changes on small offerings. The closing was firm. Sales approximated 350,000 shares. There was heavy selling of Liberty Bonds, the fourth 4¼s falling to the new low quotation of 92.58.

MAY CORN 2 CENTS HIGHER AT THE CLOSE OF TRADING

Announcement by the Grain Corporation that all embargoes on wheat are to be lifted, and that imports of Canadian wheat to this country will be permitted caused a lower opening on corn futures here today, despite a firmer tone in the early hog market. Sentiment also was bearishly influenced by good weather, moderately large receipts as compared with last year, and small cash sales the last few days, owing to the closing down of industries using corn, due to the coal strike.

Oats futures were steady in Chicago, but no sales were recorded here in the early market. Receipts were fairly large here, but small in Chicago and at other primary points.

Corn receipts here today were 69,000 bu against 81,000 bu last year. Shipments—26,000 bu against 30,000 bu. Oats receipts—94,000 bu against 66,000 bu. Shipments—110,000 bu against 93,000 bu. Wheat receipts—114,000 bu against 52,000 bu. Shipments—96,000 bu against 37,000 bu.

Corn rallied sharply in the late market and final prices firm to 2c higher than yesterday's close. Oats futures closed firm.

Russell's News, New York, reported that oats freights to Rotterdam dropped to 75c a 100, against 85c to 90c recently. Argentine freight rates continue to advance and now are quoted from Rosario at 80c to 85c a bu on corn.

Chicago wired: "Would not press the selling side of corn right here. A settlement of the coal strike would be interpreted bullishly as it would mean a renewal of buying of the cash property by industries. The weakness in cash has been the weakening influence during the past few days."

UPTURN ON CORN AT CHICAGO; CLOSE UNSETTLED

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Government moves to cut cost of living had a bearish influence on the corn market. Additional shutdowns of cereal food manufacturing establishments owing to coal shortage tended also to depress values. Eastern shipping demand and word that some corn had been sold at New York for export put a check, however, on declines. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅛c to ⅝c lower, including December at $1.30⅞ to $1.31 and May at $1.23¾ to $1.24, were followed by a slight rally.

Oats were easier with corn. After opening a shade to ⅝c down, including December at 74⅜c to 75c, the market showed but little power to rally.

Higher quotations on hogs gave relative firmness to provisions. Buying was chiefly of lard.

Subsequently, anticipations of a settlement of the coal strike led to a decided upturn. The close was unsettled, ¼c to 1⅜c net higher, with Dec. $1.31⅝ to $1.31¾, and May $1.25¼ to $1.25⅞.

REACTIONS FROM EARLY ADVANCE ON COTTON

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The cotton market showed a steadier tone during today's early trading. Offerings were light after the recent heavy liquidation and there was covering for over the week-end, with scattered buying encouraged by larger spot sales in the Southwest yesterday, increased spinners' takings for the week and prospects for continued large exports.

The opening was 1 point lower on January, but generally 15 to 23 points higher, with active months selling 40 to 54 points above last night's closing figures shortly after the call. January advanced to 34.78c and March to 32.95c.

There were reactions from the early advance but the market soon firmed up again on covering by near month shorts and bullish spot advices with January selling at 34.98 and March at 33.30 in the later trading or about 65 to 90 points net higher. The close was within a few points of the best, showing a net advance of 61 to 84 points.

ESTABLISHED 1876

If you are looking for a safe and permanent investment we believe this 7 per cent stock will appeal to you. It is an old established business. The net earnings available for dividends after the Federal tax and all other taxes were paid during the past four years have averaged nearly four times the dividends on the preferred stock outstanding. W. L. Douglas name is known throughout the world. The trade mark is a very valuable asset worth millions of dollars, and is the property of the stockholders. It is one of the most valuable trade marks in the United States.

You would make no mistake to order at once as many shares of this stock as you can afford to buy, price $100.00 per share. If you care for more particulars fill out the coupon and mail at once. Application will be made to have this stock listed upon the stock exchange.

This company owns and operates 106 W. L. Douglas shoe stores located in the large cities. W. L. Douglas shoes are also sold by over 9,000 shoe dealers in the United States.

The past few years our shoes have been more extensively advertised than ever before. Stamping W. L. Douglas name and the retail price on the bottom of the shoes before they leave the factory has saved the wearers millions of dollars, and guarantees them the best shoes in style, comfort and service that can be produced for the price.

A great demand for W. L. Douglas shoes has sprung up in leading countries in Europe and Asia. Our domestic business has increased so that our sales have actually doubled in four years. In 1915 the sales were $8,069,628.41 and in 1918 $16,660,343.46. The past six months' business was at the rate of over $20,000,000 per year.

In common with other great businesses we need additional capital to meet the urgent requirements of increasing domestic and foreign trade. The new conditions of business also demand more capital. The cost of labor and material has nearly doubled so that twice the amount of capital necessary under the old business conditions is now required.

LIVESTOCK

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Ill., Nov. 22.—Today's estimated livestock receipts: Cattle and calves, 1400; hogs, 7000; sheep, 550; horses and mules, 500.

CATTLE—Trading was very light today and buyers were refusing to accept fresh supplies this late in the week. The advance registered last week on cattle was entirely lost. Steers were hit the hardest, showing a $1 to $1.50 drop in spots.

Following is a partial list of the sales of livestock at the yards today. The figures fairly represent the day's prices:

The long string went at $13.90 today, whereas $14 was paid yesterday. Top early, $14.05, but later moved up to $14.15, or steady with yesterday's high sale. Bulk of the hogs from $13.70@13.90. Pigs without much action. Receipts total approximately 96,000 head for the week—the heaviest run since second week in January. Prices that prevailed today were 60@75c lower than a week ago.

SHEEP—No life to local sheep market today, entire run going through to other points. Market closed 50c lower on lambs for week and steady on sheep. Best lambs quotable from $14.25@14.50, with fat sheep at $7.50.

HORSES—There was practically no trading at the local horse market in the commission department. A larger portion of the week's arrivals have been afforded a clearance and the few fresh consignments that arrived during the course of the day were, as a rule, held over.

MULES—A large run of mules was available for Saturday, but quality failed to attract buyers to any material extent, and market was quiet. Prevailing demand is for smooth, fat cotton mules, other classes receiving poor consideration.

Boston Wool Review.

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say: "There has been a substantial demand for wool again this week, interest still being keen in fine and half bloods. Three-eighths combing wools have been in increased call, chiefly on the part of large mills, who are apparently protecting future requirements against the inevitable shift to lower grade fabrics. Prices are very firm and fine wools are a bit stronger. Manufacturers report all the business they can handle. Fine yarns and tops are slightly dearer."

HICKORY NUTS—At $1.75 per bu. for large, $2.75 for shellbarks and 25c for bull-nuts.

EARLY DECISION LIKELY IN LIQUOR CASE APPEAL

Supreme Court Will Recess Monday, but Will Reconvene Dec. 8.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The validity of the wartime prohibition law and the Volstead act for its enforcement was put squarely before the Supreme Court yesterday with the closing of arguments attacking and defending both measures. There was no intimation as to when an opinion might be given, but, owing to the importance of the issue, early determination is considered probable. After handing down opinions on Monday, the Court will recess until Dec. 8, so it is not likely the cases will be decided before that time.

National constitutional prohibition becomes effective on Jan. 16, and, if an opinion is not given by that date, it will make no difference what the Court decides, as the country then will have passed through the wartime prohibition period.

Root Presents Argument.

Arguments yesterday were confined entirely to the appeal by Jacob Ruppert, a New York brewer, from dismissal of proceedings brought to prevent Federal revenue officers from interfering with the manufacture of beer containing more than one-half of one per cent alcohol.

Elihu Root, counsel for Ruppert, charged prohibition advocates in Congress with taking advantage of the "year of grace" allowed by the constitutional amendment, which, he said, came "very near" being a contract between the Congress and the States, and with having "heckled and harried" the liquor interests while attempting to shove forward national prohibition a few months under the pretext of the war emergency.

Root also deplored the granting of unlimited power to the Federal Government.

In attacking the validity of the wartime prohibition act, William D. Guthrie, appearing also for Ruppert, asserted the "mere fact that some American troops were still abroad did not expand or increase the powers of Congress," and that the act was obsolete, as demobilization had been completed and the war ended.

"Attempts to Change Standard."

Guthrie declared Congress, in the eighteenth amendment or in the wartime prohibition act, did not see fit to use the term "alcoholic liquors," which would prohibit the use of any alcoholic beverage, while the Volstead act "attempts to change the standard" by the insertion by Congress of a provision making it apply to beverages containing more than one half of one per cent alcohol.

Both Solicitor-General King and Assistant Attorney-General Frierson made closing statements for the Government, in which they denied the contentions of their opponents.

RELEASED PRISONER ARRESTED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Nov. 22.—Released from the penitentiary here today under a merit parole, Richard Eof, sent up from St. Louis in August, 1918, for two years, was taken into custody by Probation Officer A. M. Neal of the Illinois State Reformatory at Pontiac.

He will have to serve out an unfinished sentence in that institution from which he was paroled prior to committing a burglary in St. Louis. By leaving the State of Illinois he violated the terms of his parole.

Good conduct in the prison here earned him a discharge under the merit system.

STOESSEL A SOLOIST OF UNUSUAL MODESTY

Gifted Violinist Is Content to Share Concerto's Honors With Orchestra.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

NO doubt the fact that Albert Stoessel entertains honorable ambitions as a composer has much to do with the banishment of every vestige of the showman when he appears as an executant. Creative work inevitably tends to change the point of view diametrically from that of the performer whose sole function is public virtuosity. He who has sought to say something with sincerity in tones is less likely to regard another's composition as a circus in which to flaunt his own gymnastics. He will disdain any effort to distract attention from the music to his personal prowess. In short, he will comport himself with the same modesty, straightforwardness and simplicity which characterized this native St. Louisan's performance yesterday as soloist with the Symphony Orchestra.

When he came upon the stage with his violin it was necessary to remain idle while the orchestra preluded at length, in beginning the Brahms Concerto in D major, Op. 77. What an opportunity for a histrionic fiddler! He could have fidgeted from one foot to another, consulted the ceiling with soulful eyes, torn at his hair with agitated fingers and retuned his instrument anxiously—with the result that the orchestra would have been forgotten in admiration of the soloist's temperament. But this youthful violinist stood in unobtrusive quiet, and by his own respect for the orchestra caused others to respect it, too.

Collaborates With Orchestra.

So it was throughout the concerto. He made no more ado about a brilliant passage than an easy one. When he had dispatched the corruscant Joachim cadenza at the end of the first movement, there was no vainglorious flourish of the bow or smirk of the face to suggest the historic brag of Little Jack Horner. Even the florid third movement, which some performers would avidly have seized upon as a chance for parade, was achieved without a hint of ostentation. To sum up, Stoessel did not at all seem to share the common delusion that it is a soloist's right to usurp all the glory of the performance. He was content to serve as a collaborator with the orchestra in affording a true representation of Brahms' masterpiece.

It was necessary to make an effort of the will to turn for a moment from the beauty of the concerto as a whole in order to estimate the violinist's individual contribution. Then it was perceived that he was uttering a refined and sensitive tone, firm and sure even if not forced into "bigness;" that without visible effort fingers and bow served him as he willed; and that for all his repose the music was alive with feeling. Very pleasing was his performance of the songful second movement. The audience gave him cordial applause, and his encore was Beethoven's melodious and poetic F-major Romanza.

The program began with George Whitfield Chadwick's elegiac overture, "Adonais," which was written 20 years ago in memory of Frank Fay Marshall, a Boston pianist, and which took its title and motto from Shelley's lament for Keats. This was the first performance of the work in St. Louis. It was found to have numerous telling strokes of orchestration, and not a few eloquent expressions of grief.

Beethoven's Fifth Symphony.

Beethoven's Fifth Symphony received under Director Zach's baton the most energetic portrayal he has as yet given here of the famous work. There was a determined effort to rasp out with the proper terrifying violence the four peremptory notes of the chief theme which typify the blows of Fate's knock at the door. But it was not quite savage and frightful enough, due, it seemed, to a certain timidity and hesitancy among some of the violins. The slow second movement was better, the Scherzo went with considerable vivacity, and the celebrated Finale achieved more than a suggestion of its overwhelming joy.

The program, which is to be repeated tonight, ended, by way of relief from the classic profundity of the Beethoven symphony and the Brahms concerto, with the brilliant music for the "Grand Fete at Capulet's House," from Berlioz's dramatic symphony, "Romeo and Juliet."

THEFT OF $2000 REPORTED FROM HOME OF BLIND MAN

Daughter, 24, Says Lost Amount Represented Her Savings Since She Was Nine Years Old.

Policemen are investigating the reported theft of $2000 and an insurance policy for $500 from the home of Miss Ida Fink, 24 years old, of 1007 Biddle street, while her father, Israel Fink, 70 years old and blind, was alone in the house yesterday.

Miss Fink told policemen the money represented the savings from her wages since she was 9 years old. She had kept the money in a tin box in the kitchen. When she left home at 6 a. m. to go to work, she said, she told her father to lock the door behind her. When a sister, Mrs. Anna Londie, 1411 Carr street, visited the home later to take the father his meals, she found the door open and the box gone. The father said he had heard no unusual noises about the house.

SUGAR PRICES BASED ON COST OF PRODUCTION

Department of Justice Explains Difference in Louisiana Cane and Western Beet Crops.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22. — The difference of 7½ cents a pound between the maximum fair price fixed for Louisiana cane sugar and that fixed for Western beet sugar was said today at the Department of Justice to be due to the difference in the cost of production. St. Louis dealers have complained that the difference was causing beet sugar manufacturers to withhold their product from the market and thus create, in large part, the present shortage there.

The Louisiana cane crop was grown under adverse weather conditions and is very short. Consequently the planters were told by the Department of Justice, after an investigation, that they could charge a maximum of 17 cents for some grades and 18 for others without being considered profiteers. The planters say they could get as high as 20 cents from candy and soft drink makers if permitted to sell without restrictions. Some of them say they will lose money at the 17 and 18 cent figure.

The beet sugar crop is larger than normal, and the Department of Justice ruled informally that the growers could make a reasonable profit at 10½ cents.

The department, it should be understood, cannot fix prices, but it holds that selling in excess of the published fair price is to be taken as prima facie evidence of profiteering. What a dealer can charge without profiteering depends wholly on the amount that it cost him to produce his crop.

About three weeks ago the Sugar Equalization Board at New York, in an effort to equalize distribution over the country, established three zones. A line drawn through Buffalo and Pittsburg divides the country into East and West zones, while the Ohio River is the northern limit of the Southern zone. To the Western zone was allotted the beet sugar crop; to the Southern zone, the Louisiana crop, and to the Eastern, the remainder (then about 350,000 tons) of last year's Cuban crop, all of which had been purchased by the board. The new Cuban crop which must now be bought in competition with foreign buyers, will start moving about Jan. 1.

The Sugar Equalization Board will go out of existence Jan. 1 and the zoning system will then cease to be operative unless the Government takes some steps to continue it.

Western Dealers Say Their Sugar Is Being Distributed by U. S. Plan.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, Nov. 22.—Replying to statements by St. Louis sugar dealers that western beet sugar manufacturers are withholding their product from the market because of the difference between the maximum fair price on Louisiana cane sugar and that on beet sugar, officials of the Great Western Sugar Co. today said:

"We are contributing to the supply of sugar in the St. Louis territory upon the same basis of distribution established by the United States Food Administration last year. This distribution is necessary on account of the world's shortage of sugar.

"We are not withholding sugar, regardless of price; on the contrary, however, upon our urgent request the Railway Administration is responding to the best of its ability to give sugar a preferential relation to the shipment of other commodities, and today shipping facilities are measuring up well with the foregoing requirements."

Explosion Kills Two in Ohio.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., Nov. 22.—Two men were killed in an explosion at the black powder mill of the Grasselli Powder plant, Lowellville, O., near here, late yesterday. The explosion is said to have been caused by a spark from machinery.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

"The Wild Cat Fad."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I want to thank the Post-Dispatch for the excellent editorial, "The Wild Cat Fad," which I have just read in the issue of the 17th inst.

This editorial is a forceful statement of a situation that exists throughout the country at this time and which it is the purpose of our organization to combat and correct, as far as possible. The editorial referred to and the excellent cooperation we have had from the Post-Dispatch are invaluable in helping us to render this important public service.

L. A. WILSON,
Government Director Eighth Federal Reserve District.

Artist Pennell on Prohibition.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The following incident related by Mufti deserves, I believe, wider circulation: When Joseph Pennell, the artist, was on his way to St. Louis recently, he stopped over at Cleveland, where the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs was in session. They had invited him to lecture on "Art." During the course of his remarks, he had this to say about prohibition:

"A people under the restraints of prohibition has never produced an illustrious poet or a real artist and can never produce men with a courageous, intelligent tendency. Prohibition creates flatheads or at best after-dinner speakers, of whom we have had a sufficiency. All really great men, leaders of people, all well-known statesmen, all poets, novelists, painters, sculptors and composers have used alcoholic beverages more or less. Either with or after their intellectual labors, they require wine, the destroyer of care, the bringer of joy, the fructifier of intellectual efforts. At present the situation with reference to art in the United States is deplorable. The desire for the gratification of artistic instincts in the masses finds its outlet in the comic sections of the Sunday papers or in the movies. There is little hope for real art in our country at present. What will be the outcome when prohibition laws are enforced?"

I never heard what the Ohio Federation of Women's Clubs did to Mr. Pennell.

ADAM GEISSBOCK.

"Bring Home the Soldier Dead"—League.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I kindly ask all the near relatives who have dear ones buried in France to communicate with me, giving me their names and addresses, so I can communicate with the headquarters of the "Bring Home the Soldier Dead"—League, which has headquarters at Pittsburg, Pa.

There is a movement on foot now in Congress to have the bodies brought back, and we want to show the people of the United States that we want these bodies brought back to the United States. After receiving your names and addresses I will communicate with you and arrange for a meeting at some place to form an organization. By all acting together we can expedite the matter of bringing these bodies home. Address,

MORRIS GOLDMAN,

For a Permanent Mineral Exhibit.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It would be a good thing if the Mining Congress now here would give St. Louis a first-class collection of minerals to be supplemented by a geological collection as soon as possible. Nothing of the kind is here, and we are the gateway to the great West, the seat of everything of interest in these lines.

The Ultimate Taxpayer.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Why was it that only owners of real estate were allowed to vote at the school-tax election? Now, don't say it was because they will have to pay this increased tax, for such is not the case, as the following will prove: My landlord informed me of a $5 increase in rent the day of this school-tax election; thus you see how he is going to pay the increased tax. This is the third time he has raised my rent this year. I will pay him $5 per month more rent; how much of this goes to the school tax, and does he who had a vote as a taxpayer or I, who could not vote, pay the taxes? "Taxation without representation" is—what?

MR. I. PAY RENT.

The Long-Suffering Consumer.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I note letter from A. E. F., who is certainly hitting the nail on the head, and I am another who thinks the fair price commission is fixing the prices so that the profiteer thinks he is not charging enough, because as a rule the price they take is way above what the articles mentioned can ordinarily be bought for. The average consumer is afraid to complain lest he be taken for an I. W. W. But in my opinion, if the laboring class had control of sugar and other commodities someone would make him come across. Is it any wonder that labor is dissatisfied, for no sooner does labor get a raise of 30 per cent, than the cost of living goes up 100 per cent, and even the worm will turn when stepped on, and labor is similar to the worm, as it seems that is about it can do.

THE LIFE OF JOURNALISM.

In a speech to the National Industrial Conference Board L. F. Loree, president of the Hudson & Delaware Co., advised advertisers to exercise control of the policies of the publications in which they spend their money. The concept of journalistic freedom is erroneous, he said, because the existence of these publications rests with their advertisers. It is absurd, he remarked, to consider them as mere vehicles for the exploitation of the views of owners, who would be forced to discontinue them in a month if advertising were withheld.

Assuming that advertisers could be induced to attempt to destroy journalistic freedom and control journalistic policies through withdrawal or threats to withdraw advertisements, what would happen?

If a strong, successful journal which had won public confidence and support by wise, independent policies and the impartiality and excellence of its news service, succumbed to the threats or influence of its advertisers and permitted them to govern its policies and its news, how long would it retain popular confidence and support?

Advertising control of its editorial policies and news service would be deadly, probably more deadly than the withdrawal of its advertising. Withdrawing advertising in order to control its policy and news would strengthen it with the public, whereas the control of its policy and news by advertising interests would forfeit public confidence and support. It would cease to be the servant of the public and would become the slavey of special interests. Whether this control were open or concealed would make little difference, because the public cannot long be fooled.

It is the fearless independence and impartial editorial and news policies of a newspaper which gain public confidence and support and thus make it a valuable advertising medium. When it loses these qualities it loses public confidence and support. It loses circulation. It loses its advertising value. It becomes worthless to either its owners or its advertisers.

Advertisers, therefore, who controlled journals through business would merely succeed in stripping the controlled journals of the qualities which gave them strength, influence and circulation—advertising value.

The exposure of press control by advertisers on behalf of certain policies would probably destroy the very ends the advertisers wanted to gain. The corrupting of the press would be taken as a proof of the unsoundness of the policy.

The life of journalism is not advertising, but public confidence and support. The breath of its life is public service.

Advertising is an incident of sound journalism. By reason of success won by wise, independent direction a newspaper becomes a profitable medium of advertising. The advertisers merely use the value acquired by good journalism.

We do not speak of the deadly effect of business control of policies upon the press as a useful factor in society, government and civilization—that is too obvious for discussion.

All that we have said about journalism and its control by special interests for special purposes, regardless of public welfare, is recognized by intelligent men as truisms. They are journalistic maxims, but it is sometimes necessary to repeat them in order to protect the unthinking from the shafts of ignorance and folly.

IMMUNITIES OF 2.75 PER CENT BREWS.

Some very sound views on the relations of state and general governments are embodied in Federal Judge Pollock's order restraining the enforcement of the war-time prohibition and enforcement acts in this district, as far as those acts affect the sale of beer with 2.75 per cent of alcoholic content.

They have interest as coming from the Federal bench and permanency because there is always an ultimate return to the general principles on which they are based, no matter how far they may be deviated from in temporary interruptions of their force.

The order also directs attention to a legal anomaly not entirely without an amusing phase, a point where two lines of solemn logic seem to meet in violent head-on collision. In passing both acts Congress assumed that the period during which it was authorized to exercise extraordinary war powers was still in existence and would remain in existence until formally terminated. But this period was also the very one during which the Constitution, a higher authority than that of Congress, the source, in fact, from which Congress derives its powers, was amended so as to provide for permanent prohibition. And in that amendment it was stipulated that prohibition should not take effect for one year from the date of its adoption. The Constitution, amended in full cognizance of the war condition under which Congress presumed to act, ignored that condition as a reason for suspending prohibition.

However, none of these points, instructively set forth in the valuable opinion, is made the basis for the issue of the writ. That basis is the even broader one found in the sentence, "The beverages (2.75 per cent brews) are in no just or true sense intoxicating or baneful in their effects." In other words, these brews of mild potency do not fall within the terms of the new amendment, which is restricted to "intoxicating" beverages.

If sustained by the higher judicial authority the opinion would exclude 2.75 per cent brews from the scope, not only of the war-time statute, but of the amendment itself. They could be sold as freely after Jan. 15 as now because nonintoxicants, and Congress is without jurisdiction over nonintoxicants.

THE COAL OPERATORS' WAGE OFFER.

The coal operators have offered a 20 per cent wage increase to the miners, but they do not expect to pay it out of their own pockets. They frankly state they will take this money out of the public's pocket. This proposed wage advance, we are informed, will add $175,000,000 yearly to the public's coal bill. To the individual consumer it will mean an increase in the cost of coal of from 35 to 40 cents a ton. Just how they figure that has not been told.

Under the pressure of present circumstances the public may not demand a full, detailed statement showing the effect of a wage increase on the cost of producing coal. But the public will demand such an accounting in due time. The bald announcement of the operators as to an arbitrary increase of 35 to 40 cents in the price of coal, because of a 20 per cent wage advance, is not satisfactory. It is not a simple proposition in arithmetic, as the operators' statement would have us believe. For example, if a crew, say, in Mine A, produced twice as much coal as the same number of men in Mine B, and both crews received the same wage, a flat increase of 20 per cent in the wages of both crews would not result in the same per-ton increase in producing costs. Obviously, the per-ton increase in the producing costs of Mine A would be only one-half that of Mine B.

Further, the practice of passing every additional cost to the consumer must sooner or later come to a halt. It must give way to the practice of reducing profits. The coal operators would render a valuable public service by introducing that custom right now. In any event, it is a policy that business must establish soon, either voluntarily or under compulsion.

CORRELATING LOCAL MUSICAL INTERESTS.

Many local organizations of different sorts but all having some relation to musical progress are drawn together in one general body through the formation of the new Civic Music Association. One of its declared objects is "To educate the people of St. Louis to appreciate good music." Education in that line has been going on for a good many years now. It has gained some gratifying results. When it has been carried to a point where a substantial percentage of the people have come under its influence, attainment of the other objects of the association will be easy, will become almost automatic. We shall have our special facilities for giving encouragement to young persons of conceded talent. We shall have our conservatory of superb equipment and national scope. We may even have our city municipal commission, with a special tax for its support, after a plan on which the Art Museum and the Zoo are supported.

The new and wider field opened by reason of the correlation of local musical interests is most attractive. The Civic Music Association has an opportunity unsurpassed by any other form of educational endeavor.

A COAL EXPORT CORPORATION.

The organization of a coal export corporation, under the immunity granted certain other industrials by the Webb-Pomerene act, has been submitted to the coal section of the American Mining Congress as a solution in part, at least, for the difficulties of the coal mining industry. In behalf of this plan it is pointed out that there is a great foreign market for American coal. We may count on placing 22,000,000 tons annually in Mediterranean ports. South America today can use 9,000,000 tons a year, and its demand will grow. But we cannot take advantage of this market unless permitted to do so by combination. Anti-trust restrictions, compelling destructive competition, make it impossible. It is urged that the ban should be lifted from the exporting of coal as it has been from steel and lumber.

The plan seems feasible. Anyhow, public opinion at the present time will be inclined to favor its trial. One of the most troublesome conditions of our coal-mining industry comes from the inability of the home market to absorb the maximum output of the mines. If a dependable foreign market could be developed it ought to be possible to operate the mines steadily. That is something which must be done, with or without a foreign market.

The alternative confronting our coal industry seems to require either the development of a foreign market, as this plan proposes, or the reduction of the number of men now employed in mining coal. The latter solution would be disturbing, unprogressive and at variance with our aggressive traditions for solving industrial problems. It would be a policy of timidity.

With the world needing the coal that America can supply a way to deliver the goods surely can be found. In lieu of a better suggestion, the proposed export corporation is entitled to consideration.

It may yet be necessary for the Senate to refer its treaty differences to a court of arbitration.

THE SEARCH.

I THOUGHT to find love in the town,
But though I questioned every face—
I found him, in ways up or down,
Not any place.

But all along the little street
A row of lighted windows threw
A golden snare net for my feet
Where'er they go—

I sought love in the highway, where
(Though far I walked abroad) no trace
I found—The summer long my fare
Was for his face.

Still, out upon the road once more,
Uncertain footprints in the snow
Told how he had but gone before
The while ago.

His hour and mine seem not to be
The same—despite my flagging feet.
I must go on—and on—though we
May never meet.

On the day the Senate failed to agree upon the peace treaty news came that Peru and Switzerland had entered the league of nations. We do not know much about the Peruvians, but if the Swiss, who were cautious enough to have holes in their cheese so they could watch the Germans while they were eating, are not afraid to come into the league, it ought not to be such a risk for us.

We are told that the Kaiser sawed the other day upon his retreat in Holland his 12,000th log. Who keeps this count, or how genuine it is, we cannot say. The only person we have seen who actually saw the Kaiser since he escaped into Holland reported him sitting sadly in some sort of kiosk out in the grove. He was not, at that time, at least, sawing any wood. Possibly he was making a survey of the timber and calculating about what the grove would yield. If so, that is a habit of life the Kaiser has acquired since he went to war with us all. He was not then much of a hand to look ahead or to count consequences, which is why he is at this time sawing wood in Holland. It has been a bitter lesson, and we hope he knows it. The rest of the world knows very well not to let another mad man build up a big war machine while everyone else merely looks on. If the Kaiser was thoughtless of the future, the world was even more thoughtless of it. We are all figuring a little further ahead than we did. If the Kaiser knows about how much firewood a certain tract of timber will make, he has nothing on us, who know now about how much hell a militarist will raise.

Life comes out at last in Bolshevik type and looking as if it had been printed underground somewhere. It has smut and coal soot on it. Br'er Martin, who always is so sweet about everything and almost never loses his temper, says the printing trade in New York has fallen into the hands of the reds. Br'er doesn't dwell upon it much beyond assuring us that all the old sane printers are out of power now; but reading between the lines we discover a picture of misery out there unequaled by anything else we have seen since the war. Life upon one occasion since the strike began had to remove a cartoon offensive to labor before the pressman would start the presses. Considering that the attitude of the publication is more playful than serious, this has truly been a terrible ordeal. Life comes out of it pretty much as we expected. It looks battered and bedeviled, and there is not a smile in it except this—which one digs out for one's self.

Aren't we getting to be something of a vainglorious cock in the world? Comment from other countries upon the failure of the peace treaty at Washington indicates that some such feeling is rising, and we cannot wonder. Every other country accepted the compromises of the Paris conference without attempting to make over what so many conflicting interests had succeeded in agreeing upon over there. This country insisted upon something different. It had to put its interpretation upon what had been agreed upon at Paris, and when it attempted to do that it became involved in a mess out of which we cannot say how we are to extricate ourselves. A newspaper at Buenos Aires expresses the opinion that what we have done will inevitably cause Latin-American countries to regard us as being hostile to their aspirations for peace. Latin-American countries are in many cases fearful of our might. Some of them have reason to be. Probably all those between the Rio Grande River and the Panama Canal are not quite sure that we shall not some day gobble them up. We are a very big dog. Little dogs measure us a good deal more than we think. They have to do that. We have proven ourselves by our repudiation of the work of the peace conference the one self-sufficient country on earth. We don't need friendship and co-operation. That is what our action says to the rest of the world. Our price for going into the League of Nations is that we come in unbound by any obligation whatsoever. We knock out every bit of the mutuality upon which the league depended for strength. That was the role of Germany in the time before the great war. It was Germany that held out when everybody else wanted to withhold munitions from combatants when war broke out. Germany would not agree to it. Her entire attitude at The Hague conference was exactly our attitude toward the peace treaty. She was the big cock then, just as we seem to have become the big cock now. The big cock that was lies dead in the pit. Do we want to be hated and feared as Germany was hated and feared? We are in a fair way to bring it about.

A SETBACK FOR SOCIALISM.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

IN TWO great countries, each a member of the "Big Five," the elections of Sunday are to be regarded as victories for economic conservatism. The French Socialists, united by the magnetic Jaures in May, 1914, established a bloc of 100 members in the Chamber of Deputies. This, under Longuet's pro-Bolshevist leadership, has been reduced by the elections to 54. But there are 71 "Radical Socialists," 24 "Republican Socialists" and 6 "Dissident Socialists" elected. Jean Longuet loses his seat. Clemenceau, who organized the "Bloc National," a grouping of all non-Socialist parties, scores a personal triumph and is said to have declared himself "the happiest man in Europe" after the results in 548 of the 602 Deputy contests had been announced. That group, if it can be held together, will have almost three-fourths of the Chamber. But the personal triumph of Clemenceau of France, like the recent personal triumph of Lloyd George in England, has its embarrassments in entangling alliances.

In Italy, Nitti has not done so well. Technically the Ministerialists are cut down from 318 to 145. Practically no such loss has been experienced, for the "Ministerialists" had largely fallen away from the Premier, and the vast new issue of Fiume counted for much. The chances would seem to favor continued power for Nitti through coalitions. The Italian election was watched keenly because for the first time since 1870 good Roman Catholics were permitted to take any part they pleased, and to have their own candidates if they chose. The distinctive Catholic party appears to have won 35 seats instead of the 24 they had. Socialists have shrunk from 77 to 54.

Only in Belgium, which held her elections on the same day, have the Socialists swelled their representation in a national parliament—from 39 to 65. The Catholic party falls from 101 to 85. No party will have a majority and the Delacroix Coalition Ministry may or may not survive.

On the whole, the outcome of the continental elections is not dispiriting to conservative American thinkers. What Albert Thomas calls the "peasant democracy" of France cannot find itself in touch with a divided Socialism whose vital elements are committed to rule by the proletariat, ignoring the peasants as much as the "aristocrats" and capitalists. Longuet said, "We will sweep France." He has failed ignominously. The noisy and Bolshevist elements in Italy have accomplished nothing, and Belgium is still conservative despite universal suffrage. Europe east of Germany is solid for an orderly civilization.

THE NEWSPAPER TREND.

From the Chicago News.

Publishers of more than 50 daily and weekly newspapers of Pennsylvania have advanced their subscription prices owing to the increased cost of white paper and other items of production. The price of daily papers will hereafter be 3 cents a copy in Pennsylvania.

Three daily newspapers in New Orleans have advanced their subscription price from 15 to 20 cents a week, and from 2 to 3 cents a copy. Other papers in Louisiana will follow suit.

This advance in the subscription price of newspapers soon will become general. The period of 1-cent newspapers passed long since. The period of 2-cent newspapers is passing. The 3-cent newspaper is on the way.

During the last three years prices have so advanced as to make the publishing of newspapers a serious problem. Many consolidations have been made necessary. Hundreds of weekly newspapers and scores of dailies have disappeared altogether in the consolidation.

Competition for circulation brought the 1-cent daily. That luxury for the public was not possible when the war was in full swing. The 3-cent daily newspaper is no longer a good business proposition, because of the increase in the cost of white paper and the increase of everything entering into the manufacture of newspapers.

The Future Radical Woman Should Retain Her Femininity

MISS JOAN HAMILTON'S THEORIES.

Yet Lend Her Viewpoint to Business and Politics

By Fay Stevenson.

"THE radical woman is all right as long as she remains a woman in her appearance and views, but let her cut off her hair, smoke a pipe, cast aside her femininity and she has lost her mission."

That is what Miss Joan Hamilton, noted lecturer and secretary of the National League of Women Workers, told the women at the School of Ethical Culture, who assembled to hear her lecture on "The Radical Woman of the Future," in New York.

"Then, in summing up 'The Radical Woman of the Future,' you warn her not to assume the masculine attitude or views of life, but to carry her femininity right along with her?" I asked Miss Hamilton.

"That is exactly the way I feel about it," was her prompt reply. "Naturally, the moment woman gets into business and steps into the outside world, she is very apt to begin to see things through masculine eyes. In some cases she is even likely to assume a masculine manner, but that is not what we need—deliver us from all long-haired men and short-haired women! Unless the radical woman can be radical along feminine lines she is simply hurting her own cause and missing her mission in life.

"No one admires the radical woman more than I do," continued Miss Hamilton. "The moment you say 'radical' some people simply froth at the mouth. They will tell you that radical is another word for crank, but even allowing them to misconstrue the word, there is something to be said in favor of the crank. We must give full credit to the courage of the crank. For instance, if there hadn't been a radical woman, a woman who wanted to go to the root of things, we wouldn't have women's colleges today; we wouldn't be wearing shoes and waists that are large enough for us, and we wouldn't be wearing short, comfortable skirts. Think of the grit of the first radical female who dared to go out without trailing petticoats and skirts, who dared to take them up off the ground for, say, at least one inch!

"But now we are through with all that—we believe in education and dress reforms and women's rights, and the finger of scorn is no longer pointed at the radical woman, but at the too conservative woman. We expect woman to be radical; we expect her to delve to the root of things; we are looking forward to her views and angles upon life, but we want those views to be purely feminine ones. We need the same feminine help in the outside world as we have had all along the ages in the home and in her inside world. That is why my warning to the radical woman of the future is to keep feminine, for that is her one opportunity."

"In other words we need the 'feminine touch' in the outside world before we attain our Utopia," I said.

"And in order to obtain that Utopia we not only need this feminine spirit of the radical woman, but we need collective action," added Miss Hamilton. "As long as the radical woman makes her education and her entrance into business and politics a personal development and advancement she is doing little for posterity. Woman cannot expect to work just for her own betterment and individual development and at the same time help the cause of women along or make the world one bit better place. The radical woman must not make her entrance into the world a personal pleasure. We must have collective action, the combination of many radical women all working together.

"If the radical woman of the future insists upon personal development only, rather than a development which will affect her whole sex, we shall have another decadence of Rome and a second Renaissance. The women of Rome were looking for personal pleasure and gratification. They were only thinking of the attractiveness and advancement of their own ego, and the result was the downfall and moral degradation of Rome. It took many years for women to outlive the prejudice of higher education that followed.

"During the Renaissance woman again came in for higher education, but her opportunity was ill used because the radical woman always worked by herself and more or less for herself. Now this is really woman's third venture into the world and she must not fail. Woman radicalism of the future ought to express itself in union not individualism. Women will have to 'get together,' they will never help the world or advance their own cause by assuming masculine mannerisms or working for individual success. We must not allow history to repeat itself in this case."

"And what sort of home life do you predict for the radical woman of the future?" I asked Miss Hamilton. "Will she dine from the community kitchen, care for her own children, or will there be any children or family life at all?"

"The radical woman of the future will be as any other woman. She will perform no miracles and she will still continue to be the homemaker. The community kitchen will never be a great success, because it deprives conversations. Woman would realize that the family circle would be broken by this constantly dining in public. And as to children—yes, there will be children; never eight or nine in a family, as in old times, but possibly one or two in each family. Women are marrying later in life, but I think perhaps their motherhood will mean more to them—there may be fewer children, but the mothers will endeavor to get into a closer, more personal side of child nature. The radical woman of the future will run her house on about the same plan as she always has, but she will also be able to live in the outside world, the business world and the political world, and lend her feminine viewpoint and instinct to the betterment of the world."

Head Must Be Lowered When Person Faints

HOW often we see the friends of a person who has fainted trying to help him by supporting him in an upright position either on a chair or by holding him on his feet—exactly the wrong thing to do. Fainting is a temporary loss of consciousness due to insufficient supply of blood to the brain. An erect position further decreases the supply. Lying perfectly flat and raising the feet would cause the blood to flow to the brain by gravity.

Persons faint from bleeding, extreme heat, lack of air, exhaustion, weakness, fear or the sight of blood. The mental element is present in almost all attacks. Persons about to faint often complain of the room being warm. They become weak and black spots float before the eyes. The face becomes pale, the lips lose their natural pink color and cold perspiration covers the forehead. The pulse is rapid and weak and the breathing very shallow. They sink back into their seats or fall to the ground unconscious.

If the head is lowered between the knees as soon as the attack is felt or noticed it may be possible to check it. If not, lay the patient upon a couch with the head hanging over the end or side. Raise the feet. Where this can not be done place him flat upon his back upon the floor or ground and lift his legs to a position of right angle to the body.

A person who has fainted should have plenty of cool, fresh air. This alone may produce recovery. Fanning or sprinkling the face with cold water is useful. Smelling salts or a few drops of ammonia water held to the nose at intervals of a minute until the breath has been taken is sometimes helpful. After the patient has become conscious he may be given one-half a teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in a third of a glass of water. He should not sit up or attempt to walk until completely recovered.

The Medical College of the New York University now has 20 women students, all of whom are on the same basis as the men, attending the same classes, working to the same laboratories and clinics and receiving the same degrees.

Austria, facing an acute shortage of laboring men, has partly solved the problem by the employment of women in the reconstruction work now going on in war-ruined sections of the country. Women are working as hod-carriers, mortar-mixers and as general laborers.

Hats, Wraps and Frocks

Sketched in Paris for the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, Nov. 5.—A rolled brim-edge of turquoise velvet, wisps of monkey fur as trimming and an upturned brim embroidered with silver threads are charming features of these three black velvet hats.

I was attracted by her smart little tricorne of black panne with its long veil held in place by two jet pins; and, as I sketched her, I realized there must be something or some one to account for her rapt expression. It was M. and Mme. Paderewski, who were occupying seats in the grand stand at Longchamp.

An artistically fashioned wrap of black satin with a beaded yoke was worn by a dainty Parisienne who stopped to try and read the poster in English, recently put up for the benefit of the English and American visitors at Longchamp. After a few moments she gave a little laugh, and said: "It is very sad! I have forgot all my Engleesh."

Thrift for Housewives

POSSIBILITIES for thrift and saving among the housewives was thoroughly demonstrated recently at the State Fair held at Raleigh, S. C., through the co-operative extension work in Agriculture and Home Economics, organized by the State in conjunction with the Federal Department of Agriculture and the State College of Agriculture and Engineering.

Under direction of Mrs. Jane S. McKimmon, State Home Demonstration Agent, various methods of saving material, time, labor and money was thoroughly explained. The home dressmaking booth showed methods of remodeling garments and the results obtained in turning old suits and dresses into attractive garments.

The millinery booth showed the possibility of every woman becoming her own milliner, with demonstrations of producing simple hats at a cost of from 50 cents to $1 each. It is claimed that a goodly portion of the women of North Carolina now are wearing attractive home-made hats as a result of teaching along this line.

The convenient kitchen both laid stress on thrift in many ways of saving time and material by use of fireless and steam pressure cooking and in preparing garden, dairy and poultry products for commercial consumption.

The work of the State demonstration agents, 42 of whom carried on the work at the fair, is being done in connection with the campaign of the War Savings Division of the Treasury Department to "Work and Save," and for investment of savings in War Savings Stamps, Treasury Savings Certificates and other Government securities.

Society Has Busy Week In New York.

By Jane Wynne.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.

SO many things have been happening here this week that it is extremely difficult to know where to begin to tell about them. During the past few years the openings of the Horse Show and opera have occurred simultaneously, making it the most strenuous week of the entire society season, and with the added affairs given for the Prince of Wales the average society woman will be quite ready for a rest cure when her duties for the week are ended.

With the two openings, Monday was, of course, the busiest day in the schedule. Of these the opera was really the most important event for the Horse Show waxes more interesting as the week advances. The Horse Show was given over on Monday afternoon mostly to the children even to the entries, and there were many tiny maidens—future belles of society—who appeared in the ring and carried away the prizes. The youngsters also figured among the interested spectators and from their enthusiasm the future generation bids fair to knowing something about horses.

After five drab seasons of war, society seemed to burst forth with the usual display of ante-bellum days at the opening of the opera. While many of the costumes were notable for their richness, it was quite noticeable that the parterre did not gleam with so many diamonds as in days gone by. It was more the soft lustre of pearls and the subtle gleam of emeralds, for green predominated in the note of color.

ONE of the very interesting guests was the Countess Szechenyi, who acted as hostess in the box of her mother, Mrs. Vanderbilt. She was gowned in white, with two stole pieces in dull pink going over the shoulders and down the corsage and skirt. She wore a diamond comb and necklace. Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, her sister, was also in white, with one of the most magnificent necklaces of diamonds ever seen in the parterre row, and a wonderful Russian headdress set solidly with diamonds.

Mrs. Vincent Astor was ever so attractive in a gown of ciel blue veiled with white, which was particularly stunning with her blond hair. She carried a huge blue feather fan. Lady Michael Herbert, in Mrs. Ogden Goelet's box, wore an almost tight-fitting gown of black velvet and a coronet of diamonds. Mrs. Goelet, in very pale blue, veiled with crystal embroidered tulle, wore very few diamonds.

WITH the presence of the Prince of Wales at the opera on Tuesday, there was even a greater number of society present than the preceding night. It was vastly amusing to see the young Prince, who is such an idol here, experiencing such an attack of stage fright as he did when he first entered the box. His shyness was most extraordinary for one in his position, and he did not appear thoroughly at ease until some ladies joined the party and remained during the last act. Then his chivalry came to the rescue and he chatted gaily with them.

Needless to say, his presence brought forth the cream of society and never before have the boxes been filled so early. In fact, there were so many dignitaries and guests of honor, or sub-guests of honor we might better say, that some of the boxes were more than filled to what is usually considered capacity. The decorations were most attractive. Everywhere there were British and American flags and the boxes were outlined with garlands of laurel and yellow chrysanthemums, with the exception of the royal box, which was festooned with roses.

The Curious Quest

"WE had a cheque for the balance of the hire this morning," he remarked. "The young lady," he added condescendingly, "seems very pleased with your services."

"I did my best, sir," Bliss replied. "The car went very well all the time. I am hoping you will give me a regular job now—for a matter of six months, at any rate."

The young man shook his head.

"Bad luck, Bliss. Can't promise anything at the moment. Fact is," he glanced towards the two men at the other end of the room, "the Governor's been speculating. We're in liquidation."

Bliss' heart sank. He had twopence in his pocket, and he was exceedingly thirsty.

"Shall I get the balance of my four weeks' salary?" he inquired anxiously.

"Yes, we'll see to that," the manager promised, rising and making his way towards one of the men at the desk. "It's about all we can do for you, though."

"Can't even give me a week's job while I look round, I suppose?" Bliss asked wistfully.

"Can't be done," the other declared. "You weren't one of our regulars, you know. Leave your address. If things go right, we'll do what we can for you."

So Bliss left the place, once more one of the unemployed. He carried his few belongings round to his old lodgings, arranged with Mrs. Heath, who was genuinely glad to see him, to take his old room again, and afterwards he hurried round to Frances' apartment. He met her on the doorstep, and his heart sank as she turned to greet him. Even to the mended gloves, she was wearing exactly the same clothes as when he had left her last. Her mouth was a little harder. There were hollows in her cheeks. Nevertheless, for the moment, her smile was transfiguring. She held out both her hands.

"Ernest!" she exclaimed. "Oh, it is good to see you again!"

He gripped her hands and forgot to let them go.

"You had my letters?" he asked.

She nodded.

"I loved having them!" she admitted. "I didn't write to you as often as I meant to, but it was so hard. There seemed to be nothing to say, and I didn't want to depress you. When did you get back?"

"This afternoon," Bliss told her, "about half an hour ago. I have four weeks' money in my pocket, less a small advance. I have been kept all the time, and I've been saving like anything."

"I am not at all sure that I approve of your touring round the country with a single young woman," Frances said.

Bliss laughed.

"Quite compromising, wasn't it? However—there was always you! We had one adventure up at Newmarket I must tell you about. The rest of the time was pretty uneventful, but such a rest. I left the lady down at Salisbury this morning with some relations and brought the car back to the garage. Come and have some dinner."

She hesitated for a moment. Then she yielded. He had a horrible suspicion that she was faint with hunger. They started off towards Drury Lane.

"I suppose the Sun people will keep you on now?" she asked.

"That's the dickens of it," he sighed. "I've got a fine testimonial, but they've gone into liquidation."

She laughed bitterly.

"Our luck isn't in, is it?" she remarked. "Do you know, that brute Montague wouldn't give me a reference?"

"The hound!" Bliss muttered.

"I have others, of course," Frances went on, "but everyone seems so suspicious. They all went to know why I left my last place. I—I've had nearly enough of it, Ernest. I've almost made up my mind to go back to Mr. Masters."

"Why not?" Bliss agreed, after a moment's thought. "He was a good chap. He'd sooner you went back"—

"If I go back to Mr. Masters I shall marry him," she interrupted. "I have almost decided to. I was only waiting till you came back to tell you."

"Marry him you never will," Bliss declared firmly. "Now lets chuck it for a time. We are going to have dinner and enjoy ourselves, and we are just going to remember that we are both young, with the future before us, and that you are the girl who is going to be my wife, and whom I am going to make very happy indeed. Only believe in me and have a little more confidence."

"You're a brave dear," she sighed, "but facts are like hunger—stubborn, stubborn as they can be."

"There's nothing stubborn about my hunger, anyway," Bliss assured her, as they turned in at the little restaurant and took their places at a table close to the wall. "I am going to make it yield, and yield quickly. I feel, somehow or other, that we are nearer to fortune tonight than we ever were."

He ordered dinner under her careful supervision and told her of his adventures while they ate. By degrees she became interested. Her manner became more animated, and the color returned gradually to her cheeks.

"It's delightful to have you here again," she said. "I seem to lose that lonely feeling that makes London so horrid. Do you know, I think I shall sleep tonight?"

Well, you're going to have a try, and that very soon," he answered. "I shall take you to your rooms as soon as we have finished dinner, but you've got to promise me one thing."

"I think I'll promise you anything," she murmured.

"You've got to promise me that you won't return to Mr. Masters without letting me know."

She nodded.

"I'll promise you that, but, Ernest—you may as well know the truth, I haven't done a day's work since you went away, and—and I'm pretty nearly penniless. I haven't sent anything to the girls for five weeks, and I am beginning to owe my landlady money. No—not that!" she cried sharply, as she saw Bliss' hand steal towards his pocket. "I won't borrow from you. I won't!"

The Sandman Story for Tonight.

By MRS. F. A. WALKER.

Billy Goat and Mr. Fox.

MR. FOX was lazy; that his wife knew very well, but she had made up her mind that he should help her with her spring housecleaning if she had to starve him to it.

"You won't get a bite to eat," she said one morning, "until you clean my carpets and rugs. Now go to work if you want your dinner, Reynard."

Out in the yard the rugs and carpets went with a bang and back to her work went Mrs. Fox.

Reynard got up slowly from the ground where he was sitting under a tree and sighed, for he knew it was work or no dinner.

He pulled the carpet on the clothes line and hung rugs beside it, and just then Mr. Coon ran by, calling out that a flock of young turkeys were in the wood, and off ran Reynard with him.

One of Mrs. Fox's rugs happened to be a big goatskin, and as it hung on the line swinging in the wind a Billy Goat happened to pass by and see it.

Billy Goat gave a look at the rug and shook his horns. "If I could find the one who did that," he said, "I would avenge my poor relative. I wonder who lives here"

Billy Goat looked around and not seeing anyone he took the goatskin and started to run away with it, but he had only gone as far as a clump of bushes when he saw some turnips which Mrs. Fox had in a basket in the yard, and Billy changed his mind.

He hid the skin of his relative behind the bushes and very cautiously tiptoed up to the basket and ate up every one of Mrs. Fox's turnips.

He felt pretty sleepy when he had finished this big meal, so instead of running home he crept behind a rock some distance from Mrs. Fox's house and went to sleep.

By and by Reynard came back from his run with Mr. Coon and as he did not wish for his wife to see him he dodged behind every rock and tree as he came near his house.

"Well! If there isn't Mrs. Fox's nice goatskin rug away over here," said Reynard. "It must have blown off the line; now, isn't it lucky I came around this way?"

Reynard grabbed the tail of what he thought was the rug, but it wasn't the rug at all; it was Billy Goat, asleep, with his head in the grass and his horns quite hidden.

There is nothing whatever monastic about this "chic" little frock of black taffeta with a green-and-white buckle and a white silk organdie frill, and yet Premet chooses to name it "Petit Abbe." After all, "what's in a name?"

EVA A. TINGEY.

Reynard dropped the tail almost as soon as he touched it, for Billy Goat jumped and turned on him.

"Oh I thought you were my wife's goatskin rug!" he said as fast as he could talk.

"Oh, You did, did you?" said Billy Goat, lowering his head. "So you are the fellow who brought my poor relative to his sad end?"

"But let me tell you about it" said Mr. Fox, as Billy Goat butted him over and over on the ground.

"I'll use all the butts that are needed to explain this situation," said Billy Goat. "I am the fellow who put the other 't' on that but you want to tell me about. I know all about it.

Poor Reynard limped home, holding his back and sides, as he groaned with pain, but Mrs. Fox would not listen to anything he said. "If you had stayed here and done the work you would not have a lame back!"

She made him clean the carpet and find the goatskin rug, which Billy Goat, in his hurry, forgot, before she gave her husband his dinner, and all through the woods could be heard the groaning of Reynard as he worked, but not a bit of sympathy did he get from Mrs. Fox.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

HARD LUCK.

Man will soon be so secure against all forms of disease that he should soon be able to set death at defiance.—A magazine.

I've been immunized against the pneumococcus;
I've been filled with bugs that battle with the flu;
Coughs and colds no more affright me, for their microbes seldom bite me,
And are harried from my system if they do.
But I dare not cross the street for fear a motor
Will approach me from behind and knock me flat.
So despite my best endeavor I don't think I'll live forever
For the doctors don't inoculate for that.

I've been proofed against the evil germs of typhoid
By a shot or two of arsenate of lead;
Chills and fevers do not rack me, for as soon as they attack me
They are met with savage drugs that kill them dead.
But a railroad train may dump me in a culvert
And alight, a mass of ruins on my neck,
And, when once it has descended, my existence will be ended,
For the doctors have no serum for a wreck.

I have taken all the vaccines yet invented,
I'm secured against the tetanus and pipp,
Gout, catarrh, appendicitis, earache, ague, laryngitis,
Housemaid's knee and ninety-seven forms of grip.
But if I should tumble off the Woolworth Building
It is likely I should not survive the fall.
So in spite of my reliance on the miracles of science
I'm afraid I won't live always, after all!
